BRIGGS ACQUITTED.

The New York Presbytery Vindicates the Accused Clergyman.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—Dr. Charles A. Briggs was acquitted to-day upon every charge preferred against him and his orthodoxy is declared to be as good as that of any of the Presbyterian ministers in the United States.

The victory was a complete one, and the Briggs men are exceedingly elated in consequence. The result was decidedly unexpected. A number of ministers who have hitherto been regarded as anti-Briggs men voted in favor of the acquittal of the Princeton professor.

The Prosecuting Committee was completely taken back by the outcome. They will hold a meeting next week and will report the vote to the Presbytery one week from next Monday.

At that meeting they will determine whether or not they will appeal to the Synod, which meets in Washington next May. It is believed that they will do this.

When the Presbytery met this afternoon the voting had proceeded as far as the R's. Each member had been limited to three minutes and all of them had taken advantage of it. The result was that when to-day's session opened the members of the Presbytery were anxious to get through. They were tired out with the trial and did not care to carry it over to the new year. The result was that they hurried up things considerably.

A number of the members did not speak their allotted three minutes and some did not speak at all. At 6 o'clock the voting was all over, and then it was found the doctor had been acquitted on the whole six charges.

Upon charge one, which was for teaching that the reason is a fountain of divine authority which may and does savingly enlighten men, even such men as reject the Scriptures as the authoritative proclamation of the will of God and reject also the way of salvation through the meditation and sacrifice of the Son of God as revealed therein, the vote was 68 to 60.

Upon charge second, with teaching that the church is a fountain of divine authority, which apart from the holy Scripture may and does savingly enlighten men, the vote was 71 to 55.

Upon charge 3, with teaching that errors may have existed in the original text of the Holy Scriptures as it came from its authors, the vote was 68 to 61. This was regarded as somewhat of a test vote.

The vote on charge four was 72 to 53. It was with teaching that Moses is not the author of the Pentateuch.

Charge five was held to be not founded by a vote of 70 to 49. It charged it with teaching that Isaiah is not the author of half the books that bear his name.

Upon the final charge the vote was 69 to 57, and it was with teaching that sanctification is not complete at death, which is contrary to the essential doctrines of the holy Scriptures and of the standard of the Church that the souls of believers are at their death at once made perfect in holiness.

IN THE RIGHT DIRECTION.

The fact that the resolutions introduced in the House looking to an immediate extension of the civil service rules, to effect thousands of Custom House officials and letter carriers, and to provide for promotions, were presented by Mr. Andrew, the Massachusetts Mugwump, lends color to the rumor that Mr. Cleveland desires the business of appointments largely done away with before he comes into office.

President Harrison is also reported as about to extend the protection of civil service reform over new classes of employes, and it is improbable that he would, so near the end of his term, make radical changes in the appointive policy unless he deemed it agreeable to the succeeding administration.

Public sentiment, irrespective of party, demands more business and less politics in the purely administrative branches of the government. Unless Sam should always be in a position to discharge an inefficient or offensive partisan employe, but the best work can only be obtained from employes who are subject only to the test of fitness and capacity. A careful civil service is simply a policy of intelligent appreciation.

—We copy the following account of a supposed burial of a person alive and if the condition of the body was as described it would seem as though such must have been the case. If it is possible that doctors and friends could make such a mistake then it were better that some certain test should be made upon every dead body, even when we are certain no life exists, for the least possibility of such a burial is horrible. Let us make sure that our friends are dead. The following account comes from Buffalo, N. Y.: Frank Michler, a painter died there (apparently) of congestion of the liver on Oct. 20, and was buried. A few days ago the corpse was exhumed to lay it in a lot just bought by the family, when every evidence was discovered of the man having been buried alive. The top of the coffin was burst off, the glass broken and the lining torn in shreds. The hands were clutched in the hair, and the flesh in many places bore the marks of frenzied fingers. The burial robe was torn almost completely off of the body.

A SILVER WEDDING AT UNIONVILLE.

On Dec. 24, 1867, Rev. J. B. Mann, who now resides in Catawissa united in marriage John and Kate now Mr. and Mrs. John Stover, who now live in a brick house just below Unionville that was twenty five years ago and to John and Kate they have been twenty five years of happy married life. On Saturday, Dec. 24 1892, they celebrated their silver wedding and all Unionville together with many friends from distant points assembled to take part in the glorious occasion and everybody had a pleasant time. "All went merry as a marriage bell and when music arose with its voluptuous swell soft eyes looked love to eyes which spoke again." The moments passed rapidly and soon the call for supper came and all started for the well filled tables and did full justice to the bounteous feast that had been spread, after supper there was singing and instrumental music by Misses Fannie and Ella Twitmire, Rev. George Warren, spoke to the bride and groom of a quarter of a century of their success and happy life. W. E. Karns, recited "the Blacksmith story." The pleasant party closed by singing with a will "God be with you till we meet again." Many beautiful and useful presents were given to Mr. and Mrs. Stover as follows:

L B Bathurst and wife, sugar spoon; A J Griest, large handsome lamp; S. B. Alexander, china set; Geo. Stover and wife, crayon portrait of Homer, dec'd; Mr. and Mrs. Riley Pratt, butter knife and sugar shell; Mrs Sarah Smith, sugar spoon: Miss Estella Stover, butter dish; Mrs S F Ammerman, tidy; Mrs J B Alexander, silver dollar; Miss Annie Barton, flowers, carnations and holly which she sent from the state of Indiana; Mr and Mrs Millard, tidy; Master's Clayton and Joe Stover, butter knife and sugar spoon; Mr and Mrs Mills Alexander $5 in silver; Rev W E Karns, butter knife; Mrs John Stevens, silver dollar; Rev Charles Stover cream jug; Mr and Mrs S K Emrick, cake dish; Mr and Mrs Frank Peters, sugar bowl; Mr and Mrs Harry Pensyl, bread and cake knife set; Mr and Mrs Samuel Brugger, pickle fork and sugar spoon; Mr and Mrs F P Blair, one dozen knives; Mr and Mrs W T Twitmire, butter dish; Miss Fannie Twitmire, sugar spoon; Mr and Mrs Daniel Shope butter knife and sugar spoon; Mr and Mrs T F Griest, set of forks; Mr A J St Clair and family salt and pepper set; Mr and Mrs Ben Boodle, butter knife and sugar spoon; Mr and Mrs Thomas Fisher, salt and pepper set; Rev Geo Warren and wife, souvenir spoon; Geo P Alexander and Miss Lulu Ammerman, berry spoon; Mr and Mrs Harris Calhoun, set of teaspoons; Mr and Mrs Daniel Hall, set of napkin rings; Waldo Vanvalin and wife, pickle stand; Mr and Mrs John Buhler, cream pitcher, sugar bowl and sugar spoon; Dr and Mrs E A Russell, set of forks; Mr and Mrs Erhard and daughter, set of napkin rings; Mr and Mrs Wm McEwen, napkin ring; Mr and Mrs John Holt, one-half dozen teaspoons; Mr and Mrs Irvin Calhoun, napkin ring. Among other guests present were: Mrs E J Leathers, Miss Kate Leathers, Miss Olive B Vanvalin, Miss Ella Twitmire, Master's Joe, Ray and Guyer Alexander, McEwen, Master Raymond Vanvalin, Master Harold Fisher, Mrs Mary Sensor and son William, Miss Ella Alexander, Mrs Wm Keatly, Mr Wm Summers, Miss Jerry Walters and daughter, Miss Josephine Erhard and Miss Anna St Clair.

Those from a distance were Mrs Kate Cooper, Belmar, N. J., Miss Fannie Twitmire, Millersville, Pa., Clyde Vanvalin, Philadelphia. Mr G P Alexander, Altoona Pa., Mr and Mrs Frank Peters, of West Decatur, Pa., Mr. Baily, of Clearfield, Pa. and Rev. W E Karns, of Bedford county, Pa.

The oldest guest present was Mr. John Alexander who was 80 years of age.

—The vacation at State College for the holidays took many of the students away and the club Houses were closed. Last Friday Mis. Lizzie Coble, who has charge of one of these club houses, built a fire in the stove. The pipes had frozen up during the present cold weather. She stepped out of the room for a moment when aloud explosion occured. When she went into the room again she found the stove entirely demolished. It was fortunate no one was in the room or a fatal accident might have resulted.

MEETING OF AUDITORS.

The auditors of the townships and boroughs of Centre county to the number of sixty five responded to the call of the county commissioners and met in the arbitration room at the court House Wednesday morning, Dec. 28. D. F. Fortney, Esq., attorney for the commissioners, presided. He explained the law as it is now and their duties under the Baker ballot law. One of the principale topcis considerd was the printing of tickets; auother was that they should have the voters in their several districts to hold the primary meetings at an early day so that there may be time to make all necessary arrangements for the election. This work however cannot be hurried up so very much as the law fixes the time at which the tickets shall be printed, or in other words, they cannot be printed before a certain time, as the law allows a certain time for corrections and new nominations that may be made. There are 99 auditors in the county so there were thirty four that were not present, over one third. Below we give the names of those who were present.

FURST CRIDER CHARGED WITH INCENDIARISM-HELD FOR COURT.

Much interest has been dispalyed in the case of Furst Crider, charged with an attempt to set a fire to buildings in which are the stores of Mrs. Gilmoure, Bauer, Garman, Meese and others. A hearing was given to the case on Saturday Morning, Dec. 24, on writ of Habeus corpus before Judges Furst and Riley. At ten o'clock A M. Many persons interested in the case were present. Crider was represented by his attorney, John G. Love, Esq. The porsecution was conducted by the district attorney. The witnesses examined were Mrs. Pearl, Miss Ella Pearl, Nicholas Baur, John Baur, Squire Samuel Foster, Policeman William Garris, Webb Karstetter, Robert Gilmour, Prof. James P. Hughes, Miss. Ried and George L. Potter. There were several reporters present and the Judge said that he wanted to caution them that the evidencegiven in this preliminary hearing was not proper for pulibcation. We therefore withhold all evidence and all comment upon it. The court held Crider in the sum of five hundred dollars for his appearance at the January term of court. Much sympathy is expressed for the young man and the general impression in the public mind seems to be that he is not the person that started the fire.

Suppose it be true that the Chinamen resident in this country refuse to obey the exclusion law and qualify under its provisions for remaining in this country. In such case—which is not only supposable, but is positively affirmed to be their purpose—we must choose between sending these chinamen out of the country or ignoring the law. So far, six months after the law was passed and only five months before its sentence of exclusion goes into effect, only a very few—less than 20—Chinamen have been registered, photographed and given certificates of their right to stay. This leaves, according to the census, 107,000 more to be disposed of; and if they do not register the law requires that they be sent home. This is quite a job for somebody, and an expensive one for the whole of us. The necessary outlay must mean a matter of millions, for it could not cost less than from $50 to $100 per head to catch and export Chinamen. If only half of them were sent home the cost would be from $2,500,000 to $5,000,000, and the outlay would increase with the number. This is a serious matter to follow such a cheap piece of demagogism as the passage of this exclusion bill was, and yet it is one which congress must face or abandon this law.—[Springfield Republican.

The Lock Haven Express in a late issue says; "There was shipped to Bellefonte on Thursday from this city as fine a piece of wood-work as can be turned out at any wood working establishment in the State. It was the pulpit and choir gallery for a new church in Bellefonte, finished in panel and all ready to set up in the church edifice. The material used was red oak, and much of the carving in handwork. The work was done by Jacob P. Beck, who is known as a skillful stair builder and wood worker. The pulpit is 33 feet long, is built in sections and will probably be the finest woodwork in any church in that city." The beautiful work alluded to in the above was made for the Presbyterian church, of Bellefonte. It is now set up in the church and is indeed beautiful in style and finish; it matches the new organ, the difference being only that one has a raised panel the other a flat panel. You can see now that when this church is finished it will be the most beautiful temple of worship in this county. The organ is one of the finest instruments in the central part of the state; its full powers will be shown at the great organ concert to be held in the church on the 13th of this month by one of the most expert organists in the world. We wish everyone in the town and county could hear this great instrument at that time. We hope the day is not far distant when every house of God in this county shall have a fine organ to assist them in singing hymns of praise and devotion.

—There were many beautiful presents at the Bogert—Rupert wedding at Zion a short time ago, an account of which appeard in the REPUBLICAN. But the members of Zion Grange forwarded to them a few days after the wedding a very beautiful and costly gift which calls out the following card of acknowledgement. Members of Zion Grange No. 767, will please except thanks of M. Bell Bogert for their gift consisting of an entire silver set, which arrived too late for earlier acknowledgement. While it shall ever be treasured on account of its intrinsic value, its real value consists in the regard it represents, and the suggestion of a pleasant past.

—The Tyrone Herald says: "at the residence of the bride's parents, Williamsburg, the nuptials of Professor Curtin G. Roop, of Birmingham, and Miss Mazie M. Spencer were celebrated in magnificent style at 1 o'clock Thursday afternoon. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. J. Spencer, the bride's grandfather. The attendants were Miss Aggie Thompson, of Williamsburg, and Professor M. J. Thompson, of State College. The groom is a professor at State College, while his bride is one of Blair county's leading society belles. About fifty invited guests assisted at the ceremony and partook of the wedding feast."

—Col. David K. Tate and wife will today attend the golden wedding of his brother, H. B. Tate, at Oval, Lycoming county. Mr. H. B. Tate and wife have lived in the same house in that place ever since they were married and he will celebrate this fiftieth anniversary of his marriage in the same house where fifty years ago he took his new made bride. It will be an occasion filled with joy and back over the course of the last half a century will come crowding many fond memories, and let us hope that the heart aches of this long past may be forgotten in the joy of the happy occasion and the meeting of many friends.

—John W. Heston, formerly of the State College, has been elected President of the Washington state Agricultural College. He is thirty nine years old and was born in this county, and received his education in our schools. In 1890 he was called to the position of the Seattle high school, which place he has filled with such honor that he has been called to a newer and higher place. His many friends in this county will be glad to learn of his advancement.

HOME TALENT AT GARMAN'S OPERA HOUSE,

On Thursday evening, Dec. 29, one of the largest audiences that ever assembled in the opera house was called to gether to witness the performance of the Bellefonte minstrel troupe. Many persons who never make a practice of attending such entertainments attended this one. Every seat in the house was filled and many persons were standing. The actors performed their part almost to perfection, calling out frequent applause. In carrying out their project the boys performed in every detail the usual methods followed by regular professional troups even to the advertising and the usual parade on the street, and everything was done in fine style. They appeared on the street in costumes with a local band composed of the following persons: William Flory, William Derstine, Fred Smith, Charley Cruse, Sam'l Meyer, William Royer, Henry Lyons, Scott Lose, A. Kerstetter, William Runkle and John Noll. We have not the space to go into details as to the merit of each performer more than to say that all did excellently well. The performers on the stage were James Harris, James Hughes, John Bayard, Harry Rine, Phil. Garbrick, Harry Rote, Wm. Derstine, Chas. Cruse, Phil. Waddle, R. F. Hunter. H. P. Harris, Robt. Bradley, G. Meek, Henry Lyon, Chas. F. Noll, Geo. Bayard, Amos Parsons. Back of them sat the Symphony orchestra, clothed in a red regalia. This orchestra played exceedingly well and was composed of Robt. Tipple, N. Beerley, John Noll, C. Smith, F. Smith, W. Royer, W. Runkle, Geo. N. Brandon. The entertainment was a complete success in every way. Everybody we have heard speak of it speak in the highest terms of praise. The receipts were $321.65. This is to be appropriated to the payments of debts contracted last summer in the effort the boys made to secure for Bellefonte the championship of the Mountain League Base ball association. It is said that the boys secured enough from this entertainment to pay their debts.

A RETRACTION.

In our last issue we published a communication from Milesburg in which we some insinuations as to the origin of fire that occurred in that place about weeks ago when the coach and carriage works of L. C. Bullock were burned.

Of the charges and allegations made in the communication we know nothing of our own personal knowledge, and when the article was offered to us for publication we so stated to our correspondent and declined to publish it on our own responsibility. We were assured, however, that the communication was all right and the writer agreed to assume all responsibility for the publication, whatever that might be.

The next day after the REPUBLICAN was issued Mr. Bullock called to see us. He seemed to be very much excited and demanded to know who was the author of the communication. We referred him to W. H. Musser, Esq., as we had been directed to do, telling him that he knew all about the matter, which we did not.

He went away but called again several times. He refused to call on Mr. Musser. At last he asked us to retract, which, as we had nothing to retract, not of ourselves having made any charges, we readily agreed to do and which we are now doing to the best of our ability as full and complete as we know how to take back something we never had said. Our own account of the fire in the same issue was an impartial statement of facts in which Mr. Bullock's losses were given as he himself had stated them.

A day or two afterwards we heard a rumor on the street that Constable Montgomery was looking for us and although we were about town all day he never caught us and so we escaped a formal arrest; it was said he had a warrant for our arrest for libel. Clement Dale, Esq., hearing of the affair went before 'Squire Foster and entered bail for our appearance to court in the sum of five hundred dollars and so after twenty years service in the newspaper business in this county we are at last in the hands of the court for a crime we did not know we had committed until the heavy hand of the law was placed upon us and now what will become of us we do not know; see! for "We are as mild a mannered man as ever scuttled ship or cut a throat."

ARRESTED FOR LIBEL.

Last week a warrant was issued against Eward T. Tuten, editor of the BELLEFONTE REPUBLICAN and W. H. Musser, Esq., of Milesburg, for libel on account of an article published in REPUBLICAN, issue of Dec. 22, in which some reflection, were cast as to the origin of the fire which destroyed the carriage works of L. C. Bullock, at Central city on Sunday morning, Dec. 18. The parties gave bail in the sume of five hnudred dollars for their appeance at January term of court.

THE PRESBYTERIAN ORGAN CONCERT FRIDAY EVENING, JANUARY 13, 1893.

For weeks the music loving people of Bellefonte and Centre county have been eagerly looking forward to the time when the grand concert in the Presbyterian church shall be given and the powers of the great organ lately bought by that society and now being put up in the church shall be tested by one of the most skilled performers on this kind of an instrument now living in the United States. Prof. L. S. Tudor Strang, who will perform on the great instrument at the concert to be held in the church on Friday evening, January 13, 1893, stands without a peer in select musical circles. He is a master in music and, if such a thing is possible, perfect in the art. He has a reputation as a skilled performer on pipe organs broader than the continent and no one in Bellefonte or the county will ever know all the possibilities of this great instrument who do not hear it at this recital, under the skilled touch of this wonderful man. The Presbyterians are more than fortunate in having secured his services to show them the powers of this new organ. This is one of the largest organs in the State and has hundreds of stops and pipes making it possible to perform any music in the world upon it. Prof. Strang has consented to play "The Chorus of Angels" by Clark and The Grand Fantasia, "The Storm" by Lemmens. If you have never heard the beautiful overture to William Tell, do not neglect this opportunity.

Mr. Geo. N. Brandon our own popular musician will play that exquisite selection "On the Coas," by Buck and also offertoire in D Minor St. Cecile by Batiste. But organ music is not all that will be offered at this entertainment. To please those who go, with grand old organ music will be added the melody of song. Miss Sarah Shearer, one of the sweetest singers in Philadelphia, has been engaged to add her effort to the pleasure of the evening. Mr. George Ford, also of Philadelphia, who ranks as first class in the world of music as a basso profundo, is sure to win the applause of all. Of local talent we shall have Mrs. W. H. Mann, Mrs. J. C. Meyer, Miss Hughes, Miss Harper, Messrs. J. C. Meyer, Elliott Harvey, Jas. R. Hughes and George Payard. A bright and popular repertoire, consisting of solos, duets, quartettes and double quartettes will be presented. The quartette Salve Regina by Miss Shearer, Mrs. Meyer, Mr. Harvey and Mr. Ford will be one of the pleasing features of the programme.

The Bellefonte Central Rail Road will run a special train to accommodate persons from State College who desire to attend the concert. The train will leave State College station at 6.15 o'clock and return immediately after the entertainment. It is expected that Supt. S. S. Blair will run a special train to bring people from Tyrone, Huntingdon, Clearfield and Philipsburg. The price of tickets will be fifty cents which admits to all parts of the house. This is a price so low that all who desire can hear one of the best musical entertainments ever heard in Bellefonte.

—Gregg Post, No. 95, G. A. R., installed new officers last Monday evening. Gen. James A. Beaver was the installing officer. The retiring commander is Geo. B. Brandon, Esq. The following are the new officers installed: Commander, John C. Miller; S. V. Commander, Thos. Donachy; J. V. Commander, Charles Eckenroth; Quartermaster, William Jones; Surgeon, D. C. Walter; Chaplain, Daniel Bartley; Ordinance Officer, J. H. Bryan; Officer of the Guard, Daniel Stiner. After the installation Commander Miller made his appointment of subordinate officers as follows: Adjutant, F. Peebles Green; Sergt. Major, W. R. Maitland; Quartermaster Sergt, Thos. R. Benner; Officer of the Day, John L. Curtin. After the installation there was a campfire which was opened by Gen. Beaver, who presented to the post from friends of the organization, a beautiful record book. Past Commander, James H. Rankin, accepted the gift for the Post in a neat speech. Speeches were made by S. H. Williams, R. A. Cassidy and Past Dept. Com. Austin Curtin. A vote of thanks was voted A. Lukenbach and his daughter Grace, R. A. Harvey, J. P. Smith and C, C. Shuey for music rendered during the evening.

—On Thursday morning, Dec. 22, Mrs. Samuel Waite and Mrs. James Dolan were coming to Bellefonte in a buggy. When near Valentine's furnace they met a man going in the opposite direction. Just as he neared the ladies the bit in his horses mouth broke and he run into their team upseting it. The ladies were thrown to the ground and badly hurt. Mrs. Waite was taken to a house near by and found to be badly hurt about the head, shoulders and back. Mrs. Nolan escaped with less serious injury but both ladies are painfully hurt.

THE HALF-CASTE.

AN OLD GOVERNESS'S TALE---FOUNDED ON FACT.

BY MISS MULOCK.

"Did you speak?" he answered, with a bewildering stare. "Forgive me; I—I have had bad news"—and he tried to resume the duties of the meal; but it was impossible; he was evidently crushed, as even the strongest and bravest men will be for the moment under some great and unexpected shock.

We said to him—I repeat we, because, though Zillah spoke not, her look was enough, had he seen it—we said to him those few soothing things that women can, and ought to say in such a time.

"Aye," he answered, quite unmanned—"aye, you are very kind. I think it would do me good if I could speak to some one—Cassia, will you come?"

He rose slowly, and held out his hand to me. To me! That proof of his confidence, his tenderness, his friendship, I have ever after remembered, and thought, with thankful heart, that, though not made to give him happiness, I have sometimes done him a little good when he was in trouble.

We walked together from the room, I heard a low sob behind us, but had no power to stay; besides a momentary pang mattered little to the child—her sobs would be hushed ere long.

Standing behind the chair where he sat, I heard the story of Mr. Sutherland's misfortunes—misfortunes neither strange nor rare in the mercantile world. In one brief word, he was ruined; that is, so far as a man is ruined who has enough left to pay all his creditors, and start in the world afresh as a penniless honest man. He told me this—an every-day story; nay, it had been my own father's—told it me with great composure, and I listened with the same. I was acquainted with all these kind of business matters of old. It was very strange, but I felt no grief, no pity for his losses. I only felt, on my own account, a burning, avaricious thirst for gold; a, frantic envy—a mad longing to have for a single day, a single hour, wealth in millions.

"Yes, it must be so," said he, when, after talking to me a little more, I saw the hard muscles of his face relax, and he grew patient, ready to bear his troubles like a man—like Andrew Sutherland. "Yes, I must give up this house and all my pleasant life here; but I can do it since I shall be alone." And then he added in a low tone: "I am glad, Cassia, very glad of two things: my mother's safe settlement, and the winding-up last month of all my affairs with—Miss Le Poer."

"When," said I, after a pause—"when do you intend to tell Zillah what has happened?" I felt feverishly anxious that she should know all, and that I should learn how she would act.

"Tell Zillah? Aye," he repeated, "tell her at once—tell her at once." And then he sunk back into his chair, muttering something about "its signifying little now."

I left him, and with my heart nerved, as it were, to anything, went back to the room where Zillah was. Her eye met me with a bitter, fierce, jealous look—jealous of me, the foolish child! —until I told her what had happened to our friend. Then she wept, but only for a moment, until a light broke upon her.

"What does it signify?" cried she, echoing, curiously enough, his own words. "I am of age—I can do just what I like: I will give my guardian all my money. Go back and tell him so!"

I hesitated.

"Go—quick, quick!—all I have in the world is not too good for him. Everything belonging to me is his, and——" Here she stopped, and catching my fixed looked, became covered with confusion. Still the generous heart did not waver. "And when he has my fortune, you and I will go and live together, and be governesses."

I felt the girl was in earnest nor wished to deceive me; and though I let her deceive herself a little longer, it was with joy—aye, with joy, that in the heart I clasped to mine was such unselfishness—such true nobility, not unworthy even of the bliss it was about to win.

I went once more through the hall—the long, cool, silent, hall, which I trod so dizzily, daring not pause—into Mr. Sutherland's presence.

"Well!" said he, looking up.

I told—in what words I cannot now remember; but solemnly, faithfully, as if I were answering my account before heaven—the truth, and the whole truth.

He listened, pressing his hands upon his eyes, and then gave vent to one heavy sigh, like a woman's sob. At last he rose and walked feebly to the door. There he paused, as though to excuse his going.

"I ought to thank her, you know. It must not be—not by any means; still I ought to go and thank her—the—dear—child!"

His voice ceased, broken by emotion. Once more he held out his hand; I grasped it, and said, "Go!"

At the parlor-door he stopped, apparently for me to precede him in entering there; but, as if accidentally, I passed on and let him enter alone. Whether he knew it or not, I knew clear as light what would happen then and there.

The door shut,—the two being within, and I without.

In an hour I came back toward the house.

I had been wandering somewhere, I think under the firwood. It was broad noon, but I felt very cold; it was always cold under those trees. I had no way to pass but near the parlor window; and the same insane attraction made me look up as I went by.

They were standing—they two—close together, as lovers stand. His arm folded her round; his face, all radiant, yet trembling with tenderness, was pressed upon hers—Oh, my God!

I am half inclined to blot out the last sentence, as, growing older, one feels the more how rarely and how solemnly the Holy Name ought to be mingled with any mere burst of human emotion. But I think the All-merciful One would pardon it then. Of course no reader will marvel at my showing emotion over the union of these my two dearest objects on earth.

From that union I can now truly say I have derived the greatest comfort of my life. They were married quickly, as I urged; Mr. Sutherland settling his wife's whole property upon herself. This was the only balm his manly pride could know, and no greater proof could he give of his passionate love for her, than that he humbled himself to marry an heiress. As to what the world thought, no one could ever suspect the shadow of mercenary feeling in Andrew Sutherland. All was as it should be—and so best.

After Zillah's marriage, I took a situation abroad. Mr. Sutherland was very angry when he knew; but I told him I longed for the soft Italian air, and could not live an idle life on any account. So they let me go, knowing, as he smilingly said, "That Cassia could be obstinate when she chose—that her will, like her heart, was as firm as a rock." Ah me!

When I came back, it was to a calm, contented and cheerful middle age; to the home of a dear brother and sister; to the love of a new generation; to a life filled with peace of heart and thankfulness toward God; to——

Hey-day! writing is this moment become quite impossible; for there peeps in a face at my bedroom door, and, while I live, not for worlds shall my young folks know that Aunt Cassia is an authoress. Therefore good-bye, pen! And now come in, my namesake, my darling, my fair-haired Cassia, with her mother's smile and her father's eyes and brow—I may kiss both now. Ah, God in heaven bless thee, my dear, dear child!

FOR LOVE OF AN ACTRESS.

BY W. C. FULTON.

"A gentleman to see you, sir."

"His name?"

"He gave none, sir; said you knew him well."

"Show him in."

I threw aside the evening paper as I bade the office boy show the gentleman into our private apartment, with scarce a thought as to who this stranger might be. The opening of the door announced his entrance, when I beheld a medium-sized man with dark hair and eyes, heavy moustache and closely-cut whiskers, and a clear though somewhat pallid complexion.

"Mr. Weldon, I believe?"

"That is my name," I responded, as much in the dark as to his identity as ever.

"Why, Bob, don't you know me?" he asked, observing my puzzled expression.

"Ned Pierce, as I'm alive!" and I grabbed his outstretched hand with a vigor that made him wince.

"Why, Ned, what under the heavens ever brought you to Paris? The very last person in the world I would have dreamed of seeing."

"The channel steamer brought me to France, and I naturally drifted to the metropolis through the medium of the steam cars. But how long have you been in this city?"

"Five years last December."

And then he told me how it was by the merest chance that he found me. Having some financial matters to attend to, he had inquired at the hotel for an American banking house, and had been given, among several others, the names of Howe Ralston and Weldon. Inquiry disclosed the fact that it was none other than his old friend Weldon of former years, and hence his seeking me out. Of course nothing would do but that he must accompany me home, and, as it was then nearly dinner-time, we started at once.

"I have nothing elaborate to offer, Ned," I explained, "but my bachelor apartments are at least comfortable, and we can talk over old times and have a quiet smoke."

"Not married yet, Weldon?"

"No, and no prospect of it."

"That's singular. I supposed, of course, you were married and settled down long ago."

"Why of course?"

"O, I don't know! No especial reason, only it was one of my air-castles to find you a Benedict with an interesting family."

"Not any for me, I thank you! That is where your building was at fault. And you?"

The sudden turn I gave to the conversation seemed to disconcert him for a moment, and he answered, with a little bitter, ironical laugh:

"I? I guess I am a confirmed bachelor."

Ned had always been such a jolly companion! Ever ready for a good time, and neither better nor worse than a great many young men. He had his faults, as who has not? And as for his good traits of character, they appear sometimes so unexpectedly as to seem all the better for the contrast. We were quite good friends years ago, and I came as near making a confidant of him as I ever did of any one. I was never very much given to over-intimate friendships with any body, like many young men, and the majority of young ladies. On the contrary, while enjoying the society of others, I was always of a very reticent turn, rarely telling any of my companions anything of my personal affairs. What good would ever come of it? If one has difficulties lying in his path, they are none the more easily overcome by pouring out one's trials into the willing ear of a ready listener. And, on the other hand, if one has a bit of good fortune, how few people there are in the world who really care to hear it.

And it was six years since I had last seen Ned! Heigh-ho! How time does fly! It's no wonder I didn't recognize him. Six years ago I bade Ned Pierce good-bye on the deck of an outgoing Cunarder. Left an orphan with a large estate, he was naturally inclined to take life easy, and when I said farewell he was starting on his first trip across the water, while I turned back to my business in the crowded streets of the great city. During these six years I had lost all track of him, and indeed, had not thought of him for some time. I had been quite prosperous in my undertakings, and was now manager of the Paris branch of our banking-house, with a moderate fortune laid by for the traditional "rainy day."

As we arrived at our destination, Ned expressed a decided approval of my apartments, with repeated words of admiration. "Yes," I acquiesced, "it is very comfortable here."

"Have you any engagement for this evening?" he asked as we arose from the dinner-table.

"Nothing imperative."

"Then come with me."

"Where?"

"To the opera."

I had no objections, and at once agreed to it, although I cared enough to inquire what was to be sung that evening.

"You asked me on our way home what I had been doing with myself for the last six years," he said. "Come with me to-night, and after the opera I will tell you my story."

We went. I found that he had a box already engaged, and the usher led the way to it, at the right hand of the stage, when he retired as silently as he came.

It was the familiar opera of "La Traviata," sung by a moderately fair company, and had I been alone I probably should have noticed nothing particularly striking about any of the singers. As it was, no sooner had "Violetta" made her appearance than I was attracted by the strange behavior of my companion.

"See, there she is!" he whispered, as he caught my arm with a vise-like grip.

"Well, what of it? Let go my arm."

I scrutinized closely this apparently wonderful prima donna, and, by the aid of my powerful opera-glasses, noted minutely her personal appearance. A tall, graceful blonde, with large eyes like two purple pansies, and her own fluffy, golden-brown hair, almost dark, of the most beautiful shade I ever saw. Her cream-white complexion was partially discernible through all the paint and powder, while her form was the embodiment of grace. She possessed a magnificent voice of great range and flexibility, and kept the entire audience as well as Ned, under her complete sway.

The dying woman had finally sank back gracefully amid the watery endearments, and the curtain descended to slow music on the last act, when Ned leaned back in his chair with what sounded to me like a half-sigh, while an unnatural flush burned in his cheeks, and his eyes glowed as with an inward fire. Little had been said during the progress of the opera, and he was strangely taciturn all the way home, seeming entirely preoccupied with thoughts altogether foreign to the surroundings.

"I beg your pardon, Weldon," he said, when we were once more in the house, and settled comfortably by the glowing grate for a quiet smoke. "I beg your pardon, but I fear I was poor company this evening."

While I mentally agreed with him, I protested to the contrary.

"You want to hear my story? Very well. It is an o'er true tale, at all events, and may prove interesting."

After a few moments' silence, in which his thoughts seemed far away, he began:

"You remember when last we parted?"

"Yes, on the deck of the steamer, as you were starting for Europe."

"Exactly. After landing, I went at once to London, where I remained for several months, doing nothing in particular, but passing the time as a young man naturally would who had his pockets lined with gold and an abundance of leisure time on his hands. After an idle, aimless life in that old city, I crossed the channel and made my way to Paris. You remember, Weldon, when I became of age, my guardian turned the whole of my income over to me, unreservedly, while he still retained the management of the estate, at my particular request. As I had never been abroad, and, in fact, had not traveled much in my own country, I naturally felt a desire to see the world."

"Quite natural, I'm sure."

"Well, I began to make the most of the two resources at my command—time and money—and was soon living a gay and perhaps somewhat fast life in this, the best, or I might say the worst of French cities. At any rate, I found myself enjoying it all very well, as it was one ceaseless round of gayeties, with theatres succeeding balls, and these closely followed in their turn by the opera or something equally entertaining. I owed the most of my introductions into society to an artist friend of mine who, though already famous, and on the shining road to riches through the medium of his brush, lived somewhat of a Bohemian life among the multitude of artists studying under those various Parisian masters. Perhaps you knew this Arthur Pierrepont? He was formerly from New York."

"I knew him by reputation only."

"We were quite intimate, and had many a jolly time together. There was a certain club in existence in Paris then of which he was one of the leading spirits. It was their custom to hold receptions every two weeks at their elegant club house, which were attended by the members who were almost entirely actors, actresses, journalists and musicians, together with their friends. These were always most enjoyable affairs, and we went a number of times during the season.

"It was at one of the parties or receptions, that I first met Jules Dupres. He was a typical Frenchman, in stature small and wiry, with coal-black hair and bushy eyebrows, and a heavy moustache, almost hiding his thin, treacherous lips. His eyes were small and deep-set, piercing in the intensity of their blackness, while they darted about so restlessly, and with such a sinister expression, that I instinctively felt a dislike to him before I had been fairly presented. This bad impression speedily wore off as I entered into conversation with him, when I found him one of the most accomplished talkers I had ever met. There was no subject I could touch upon but what he was perfectly at home, and could outtalk me twice over."

"He must have been remarkable:"

Ned smiled as he responded, "I see you do remember me, after all."

"Yes; but go on."

"As I was saying, this man was so entertaining that I soon forgot my half-formed prejudices, and was completely charmed by his manner. As time ran along, and we met at a number of social events, I became quite intimate with him. My artist friend noticed this, and did not appear to sanction it.

"'I don't half like that black Frenchman of yours, Pierce,' he said to me one day, while I was watching him at work in his studio.

"'Why?'

"'O, I fancy he is not exactly a fair and square man. I may be wrong, but he don't impress me at all favorably.'

"So thoroughly infatuated had I become with him that I laughed Pierrepont's fears to the winds. I was sure he was all right. Why, such a jolly good fellow could not be very bad at heart!

"It was one evening in early May that found me at the last of the club receptions for the season. As usual, my olive-hued Dupres was there, as smiling and voluble as ever. During the evening, which seemed more than usually gay, I wandered into the almost deserted smoking-room, and sinking into an easy-chair, was soon enveloped in a cloud of smoke, and deep in a brown study.

"'A penny for your thoughts, my friend.'

"I looked up, and there was Dupres, leaning in a careless attitude against one of the window casements. 'Ah! it's you, is it? I was just thinking how pleasant it all was here, and how I hated to leave.'"

"'Leave? Is monsieur going away?'

"'Yes, I have decided to ramble on. I am going to start for St. Petersburg to-morrow.'

"'Is it possible? How very singular! I am going to Riga myself, and perhaps we can arrange to travel in company.'

"'I was not aware you contemplated leaving Paris,' I said, somewhat surprised at his avowal. 'I did not know you were in business.'

"'O, yes, I am starting for Russia to look after our furs. We are largely interested in that industry.'

"I fancied for the moment a slight embarrassment in his manner, but immediately dismissed the idea, reasoning in my own mind that there was nothing very remarkable in two gentlemen chancing to be traveling in the same direction.

"The result was, the next morning found us in the same compartment, and booked for the same destination.

"'Since leaving you last night,' he explained, 'I find I would have to go to St. Petersburg, after all, so concluded to go at once and be done with it.'

"After a long and tiresome journey, we arrived at our destination, and under his guidance went to the Imperial Hotel, where we were accommodated. The weather was simply delightful for that part of the world, and we gave ourselves up entirely to pleasures and sightseeing. He had apparently forgotten his business, as he never referred to it, while I, who had lost any mistrust I might have had, was only too glad to have him devote his time to amusements. A few evenings passed, and he proposed the theatre. It seems there was a very good French company just beginning a long season there, and were playing to crowded houses. We went, and it was there I first saw my fate."

Ned paused, and silence reigned for a few moments, while with a hard set expression on his face he gazed moodily at the glowing coals.

"'It is needless," he began, slowly, "to recount all my first impressions, and rave of personal charms. Suffice it to say, I fell deeper and deeper in love with this angelic being behind the scarce less dazzling footlights, and my friend observed it, as we fairly haunted the theatre.

"'You admire the lady?' he said, one night, as we were in our accustomed seats.

"'Yes;' I replied, a little miffed at his observance.

"'Tres bien! I can give you an introduction.'

"'What! you know her?' and I could have embraced him, so suddenly were my feelings changed.

"'Yes.'

"'And will introduce me?'

"'If you wish it,' and he darted a side glance at me from under his bushy eyebrows.

"You may imagine how impatient I was after that. I could scarce wait till the end of the play, and little heeded the stage when Mlle. Veranique (that was her professional name) was not on.

"Dupres was as good as his word, and the next day took me around to her house, where she was living with her mother as chaperon. It was a magnificent place, piled full of all the luxuries fancy can suggest, or an unlimited outlay purchase. We found a throng of visitors, as it was her reception day, and it was with no little difficulty that we reached her presence, when the Frenchman introduced me to Adele Fabian, for she dropped her other name at the stage door. I wish you could have seen her! She was enough to turn the head of an anchorite, with her deep blue eyes and dazzling smile. It is useless to dilate on this point. It is enough to say that I soon became madly infatuated with her. I had never questioned Dupres's acquaintance with her, but supposed, like me, he had been introduced by some mutual friend.

"I became a frequent visitor at her house, and from that to a constant one. In fact, I became her shadow. Wherever she went I was sure to be found near at hand, and the close of four months found me hopelessly entangled in the meshes of love, beyond all thoughts of extrication. It annoyed me to find Dupres at her house so much, for it seemed as though I could never call but to find him there. He never appeared to be very deeply interested in her movements, but hung around with a familiarity that was intensely irritating to me.

"I fancied my case was not altogether hopeless, and finally, when I learned it was the last week of their engagement, made up my mind to know my fate, thinking it preferable to this maddening uncertainty."

"You were certainly hard hit, my boy," I said.

Ned smiled as he continued:

"It was a beautiful day that I called, determined to know the worst. Upon sending in my card, I was ushered into her presence, and by great good luck found her alone. I made a few incoherent remarks upon minor topics, and then boldly declared myself, urging my suit with all the fervor of a burning passion. A rosy blush mantled her fair face for a moment, and then, dying away as suddenly as it came, was succeeded by a deadly pallor that o'erspread her entire features.

"'I am deeply grieved at this, my friend,' she said, in her low, musical tones, 'and I would have spared you this confession!' And she turned her head to hide her face.

"'But, my darling, I love you more than words can tell. My very existence hangs trembling on your lips.'

"I seized her hand and pressed it to my lips, which seemed again to touch her heart, for with a sad look in her beautiful eyes dimmed with tears, and in a faltering voice, she said:

"'It can never be, however much I may—'

"'Then you do love me? O, my darling, nothing shall separate us!' and I drew her to me, seeing the lovelight beaming in her starry eyes.

"'Ah! don't be too sure, my fine fellow!' sneered a familiar voice, as Dupres walked into the room. He had been in the room adjoining, and through a partially-opened door had heard all.

"Adele turned to the window, while I met his scowl with a steady face, fired by the devilish gleam in his wicked eye.

"'So ho!' he said; 'this is the way I find my charming friend employed.'

"'Scoundrel!' I cried; 'leave this house!'

"'I guess not,' he replied, with exasperating coolness, when he rolled and lit a cigarette. 'I trust monsieur will be calm. I have a little business to transact with our amiable American friend. Adele,' turning to her, 'will you be seated?'

"She sank into a chair without a word, and seemed dazed at his villainous manner.

"'I desire monsieur to give me his note of hand for twenty-five thousand francs. I will write the paper and he shall sign it.' He seated himself at the small table, and made preparations with all the sang-froid imaginable.

"'But suppose the gentleman refuses?' I asked, in as steady a tone as I could command.

"'Then your life shall pay the penalty!' he cried, springing to his feet, while he seemed to go wild with passion. 'Your blood!' he shrieked. 'Do you think I am to be balked?'

"Then calming himself a little, he exclaimed, in less excited tones:

"'Perhaps you did not know that yonder sits my wife? Do you hear? My wife!'

"'Jules Dupres, you lie!' cried Adele, as she sprang to her feet and confronted him indignantly. 'How dare you tell such a preposterous story! What little forbearance I had for you is gone forever!' and her eyes flashed like diamonds.

"As she hurled this stinging rebuke at him, his swarthy face grew livid with passion, and he made a step forward as if to grasp her arm.

"'Villain!' I cried, and quick as a flash swung a chair over my head. He was quicker, however, and drawing a revolver as the chair descended on his head, fired point blank at my face. With a sickening crash the chair felled him as one dead, while the bullet clipped off a lock of my hair, barely grazing the skin. He lay unconscious. Securing his weapon, I raised him to the couch, and saw he would be all right in a few minutes. 'Is this true?' I hoarsely whispered, holding Adele at arm's length.

"'No, no! Believe anything rather than that!' She wrung her hands in anguish. 'Leave me for the present, I beg, nay, I implore you, and to-morrow I will explain all!'

"What could I do under the circumstances but comply with her request? As I passed out of the house I told one of the servants to go to his mistress's room, thinking she might need some one near at hand.

"Those were the longest hours of agony I ever endured, waiting till I might call the next day. It came at last, and to my eager inquiry at the door of Adele's house, the servant responded that mademoiselle and her mother had taken their departure early that morning. Impossible! I fairly raved in my anguish, unconscious of my surroundings. Then it was all too true! Was there no message left—no letter?

"Yes, there was. The letter was handed me and with feverish anxiety I tore it open and devoured its few hurried lines which were far from satisfactory. Dupres was not her husband at all, but her affianced from early childhood by the wishes of her parents, and had conceived that mode of extorting money. She had now broken it off, and considering herself disgraced, had left us forever. It was useless, she said, to try to follow her.

"I was as one demented for days, when I finally recovered enough to begin the search. I have looked continually ever since in every city in Europe. She had changed her name, commenced an operatic career, and eluded me at every turn. It was only two days ago that I found her singing here in Paris. I have not yet been able to see her, but am determined to have an interview at the earliest possible moment. I understand Dupres is in the city, though he dare not approach her. If I meet him, let him beware!"

As Ned finished, a deep silence ensued, one which I was the first to break.

"Come, cheer up, old fellow! It will all turn out right!"

"I hope it will," was the response, as he bade me good-night.

Two days elapsed and Ned did not come around. The morning of the third day, as I was reading the paper over my breakfast-table, the following notice caught my eye:

"A MYSTERIOUS TRAGEDY.—The police report the finding of a man bearing the name of Jules Dupres, in an almost dying condition, at the northern confines of the city, from the effects of a sword-thrust through the left side. Two rapiers were found on the ground, and the natural supposition is a fatal duel. The man was removed to the hospital, where, on recovering consciousness, he gasped, 'O, my side—Pierce—revenge!' and some incoherent remarks. Whether he meant that the sword pierced his side, or that his adversary was named Pierce, has not been determined."

There was little or no doubt in my mind but that Ned had met the Frenchman and, forcing him to fight, killed him, as he supposed, and fled the country. Heigh-ho! what fools men will make of themselves over a woman!

The wounded man did not die, but recovered, and left for Australia, as I learned by inquiry at the hospital some two months later.

The affair dropped out of the papers, and I heard nothing of Ned for four or five months, when I received the following letter, which explains itself:

FLORENCE, Sept. 14, 1881.

"Dear Weldon:—I am sure you will be glad to hear that I am once more a happy man, and have been married ever since we left Paris. Of course you can tell who made me the embodiment of contentment, and raised me to the seventh heaven of delight. I will tell you all about it when I see you again. I heard Dupres had recovered and left the country. We will return to Paris by the first of December, and Adele joins me in an urgent invitation for an immediate visit. I do not say a call, for I mean that you shall stay awhile. Until then, believe me, very truly,

NED PIERCE."

So it turned out all right, after all! Ned married the woman he adored, and was living happily after all he had endured "for love of an actress."—Chicago Sat. Eve. Herald.

HUMOR.

A religious tract, called "Put Not Your Trust in Princes," was thrown into the saloon of a simple old German. He read the title and soliloquized: "Vell, I don't put some drust in princes. Dey must pay der cash in dis shop chust der same as vite mans."

A medical journal says that a window in a sleeping chamber should always be let down a few inches at the top, even in the coldest weather, in order to admit a little fresh air; but it is not always safe to follow the advice of a medical journal. A little fresh heir has been known to keep a man awake all night, and transform him into a modern Herod—almost.—The Judge.

Mr. James E. Murdoch, the veteran actor and reader, tells this reminiscence of himself: "In the fifties," he says, "I was on the Western frontier, and some of the settlers asked me to tell them about the comet. 'The comet?' said I; 'why, I know nothing particular about it.' 'You don't know nothin' about it?' responded one of the settlers; 'then why on airth do folks call you a star?'"

"Mr. Boggs, Mrs. Parsons has fallen off the bridge into the creek, and she called to me to bring her some succor quickly or she would drown," said little Tommy Phibbs, out of breath. "Well, why don't you do it, then?" "Why, I've come after you, for Bill Perkins said last night at the post-office that since Sam Cheever died you were the only sucker left in the village."

A man who ventures upon the study of science after his marriage is apt to have his mind diverted by many considerations that do not properly arise from that study. A young Brooklyn husband hadn't finished half a dozen chapters of a work on geology before he observed to his wife: "My dear, I wonder if the women of the glacial epoch had cold feet."

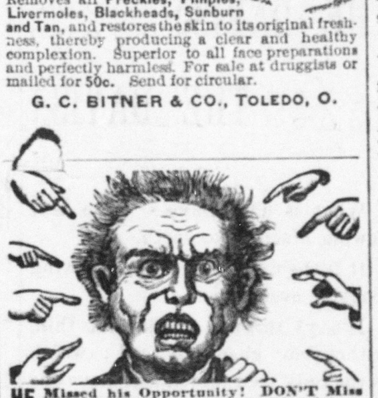
G. C. BITNER & CO., TOLEDO, O.



HE Missed his Opportunity! DON'T Miss Yours, Reader. The majority neglect their opportunities, and from that cause live in poverty and die in obscurity! Harrowing despair is the lot of many, as they look back on lost, forever lost, opportunity. Life is passing! Reach out. Be up and doing. Improve your opportunity, and secure prosperity, prominence, peace. It was said by a philosopher, that "the Goddess of Fortune offers a golden opportunity to each person at some period of life; embrace the chance, and she pours out her riches; fail to do so and she departs, never to return." How shall you find the GOLDEN opportunity? Investigate every chance that appears worthy, and of fair promise; that is what all successful men do. Here is an opportunity, such as is not often within the reach of laboring people. Improved, it will give, at least, a grand start in life. The GOLDEN opportunity for many is here. Money to be made rapidly and honorably by any industrious person of either sex. All ages. You can do the work and live at home, wherever you are. Even beginners are easily earning from $5 to $20 per day. You can do as well if you will work, not too hard, but industriously; and you can increase your income as you go on. You can give spare time only, or all your time to the work. Easy to learn. Capital not required. We start you. All is new, peculiarly new and really wonderful. We instruct and show you how, free. Failure unknown among our workers. No room to explain here. Write and learn all free, by return mail. Unwise to delay. Address at once, H. Hallett & Co., Box 880, Portland, Maine.

FAT FOLKS REDUCED From 15 to 25 lbs. per month by harmless herbal remedies that do not injure the health or interfere with one's business or pleasure. It builds up and improves the general health, clears the skin and beautifies the complexion. No wrinkles or flabbiness follow this treatment. Endorsed by physicians and leading society ladies. PATIENTS TREATED BY MAIL. CONFIDENTIAL. Harmless. No Starving. Send 4 cents in stamps for particulars to DR. O. W. F. SNYDER, McVICKER'S THEATER, CHICAGO, ILL.

WE WANT YOU
to act as our agent. We furnish an expensive outfit and all you need free. It costs nothing to try the business. We will treat you well, and help you to earn ten times ordinary wages. Both sexes of all ages can live at home and work in spare time, or all the time. Any one any where can earn a great deal of money. Many have made Two Hundred Dollars a Month. No class of people in the world are making so much money without capital as those at work for us. Business pleasant, strictly honorable, and pays better than any other offered to agents. You have a clear field, with no competition. We equip you with everything, and supply printed directions for beginners which, if obeyed faithfully, will bring more money than will any other business. Improve your prospects! Why not? You can do so easily and surely at work for us. Reasonable industry only necessary for absolute success. Pamphlet circular giving every particular is sent free to all. Delay not in sending for it.

WANTED—COURAGE.

Mrs. Julia Ward Howe said, in her address at the annual meeting of the Massachusetts Woman Suffrage Association, on Dec. 6:

Though we suffragists are proud and glad to stand by each other and by our banner, most women have not yet the courage to stand by their opinions. They have not the opinions, in many cases. While much that we see abroad makes us glad and thankful that we are Americans, the one thing I am ashamed of is the cowardice of our women. They do not think things out, and even when they do, they have not courage to stand up and say they have thought them out, and to stand by them. Years ago, Elizabeth Stuart Phelps proposed that we should have a woman suffrage prayer-meeting, and we had it, in James Freeman Clark's church, and we prayed very earnestly—I do not know with how much result. If we were to hold one now, I should want our women to pray to be delivered from this mean fear of men, this fear to stand up and confess what they believe, and to stand by their convictions. In delightful contrast to this bad want of courage was the recent action of the women of Memphis. This Association for the Advancement of Women was received there with true Southern hospitality; and finding that we had no paper on suffrage on our programme, the women asked us to devote one evening to that topic. We told them we had supposed they would be rather afraid of that subject; but they promised us the best audience of all for that evening, and they kept their word. I am afraid that the same class of people in Boston, if the A. A. W. had held its meeting here, would have been more likely to tell us to talk of temperance, of the labor question, and even of dress reform, if we must, but to avoid suffrage. Boston should take a lesson from Memphis.

But the outlook is most encouraging. Years ago, the advocates of equal rights for men and women were very few, only voices in the wilderness, crying, "prepare ye the way of the Lord!" But now we want spades and mattocks to prepare the way of the Lord; and soon we shall want the trumpets and the torches of victory. At seventy-four years of age, one cannot promise, but I expect to live to see it.

Drunkenness, or the Liquor Habbit Positively Cured by administering Dr. Haines' Golden Specific.
It is manufactured as a powder, which can be given in a glass of beer, a cup of coffee or tea, or in food, without the knowledge of the patient. It is absolutely harmless, and will effect a permanent and speedy cure, whether the patient is a moderate drinker or an alcoholic wreck. It has been given in thousands of cases, and in every instance a perfect cure has followed. It never fails. The system once impregnated with the Specific, it becomes an utter impossibility for the liquor appetite to exist. Cures guaranteed.
48 page book of particulars free. Address Golden Specific Co., Race St., Cincinnati, O.

TOM WATSON TATTLES.

The revelation made by the Jeffersonian democratic Congressman, Tom Watson, of Georgia, who recently ran on the Populist ticket and was defeated, that railroad companies and Northern democrats contributed $100,000 to overthrow him, shows that a good deal of money was used in the recent election, and that the Cleveland democracy had barrels of it.

There never was a greater sham in the history of politics than the democratic outcry last fall against the alleged use of money by the Republican party. Mr. Cleveland's friends used at least three dollars to every one that was raised for Republican campaign purposes, and they know it.

LADIES WHO BLOAT.

What a great number there are; how uncomfortable it makes them: it is almost impossible for those afflicted to enjoy life. In my private practice I have always found Sulphur Bitters to be the best remedy. All who are thus troubled should use it.
MRS. DR. CHILDS, BOSTON.

OWING to the rapidly increasing circulation, the Pittsburgh CORONICLE TELEGRAPH has found it necessary to purchase, at the cost of $75,000, two of Hoe's Double Supplement Perfecting Printing Presses. The usual difficulties incident to setting up such machinery will explain the delays during the past week in the arrival of the papers. When in thorough working shape, which condition is about reached, the CHRONICLE TELEGRAPH will have as complete a plant as is in the United States, and will continue to give the public the greatest newspaper in Western Pennsylvania for the very smallest coin—ONE CENT.

I have not used all of one bottle yet. I suffered from catarrh for twelve years, experiencing the nauseating dropping in the throat peculiar to that disease, and nose bleed almost daily. I tried various remedies without benefit until last April, when I saw Ely's Cream Balm advertised in the Boston Budget, I procured a bottle, and since the first days' use have had no more bleeding—the soreness is entirely gone.—D. G. Davidson, with the Boston Budget, formerly with Bostan Journal.

It is reported that a woman has been elected road overseer in Clay County, Kan. If she is one of the many women who are kept closely at home on the farm for six months of the year because of almost impassable roads, she will make good use of the opportunities afforded by her office.

MRS. REBECCA AYRES LADD, who died at Springfield, Mass., Nov. 27, at the age of 74, was the first woman elected upon the Springfield School Board, and at that time the new departure was regarded as a doubtful experiment. She was warmly commended for her services by the mayor and aldermen. Mrs. Ladd took an interest in public matters, and was an active worker for the Home for the Friendless, the Women's Christian Association, and other charitable causes.

A Babe Wants Its Pa.

An advertisment appears in a western paper which reads thus: "If George William Brown, who deserted his poor wife and babe 25 years ago, will return, the aforesaid babe will knock the stuffing out of him."

One hundred women students of the State University at Columbus, O., after holding a mass meeting, lately walked out of the building on account of the poor sanitary condition of their rooms. They say they will not return until the matter is set right.

—At a meeting of the state executive committee of the Prohibition party held at Harrisburg on Thursday, it was decided to hold the next state convention in that city, June 7, 1893.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:
"If any one wants to know how good your medicine is, just refer them to me.
"I was so low, people thought I never could get well again.
"The trouble was in my womb, causing bearing-down and severe backache. I was so nervous and irritable my people could hardly live with me. Sometimes I would almost fall down, I was so dizzy, and how I did lie awake nights! I thought I should go crazy!
"But now all that is changed, and I am a well woman. I owe all to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Now, when I do not feel just right, I take a bottle of your medicine and a box of your pills, and they never fail me."
Mrs. L. Travis.

Yours for Health, Lydia E. Pinkham

A Family Affair

Health for the Baby,
Pleasure for the Parents,
New Life for the Old Folks.
Hires' Root Beer
THE GREAT
TEMPERANCE DRINK
is a family affair—a requisite of the home. A 25 cent package makes 5 gallons of a delicious, strengthening, effervescent beverage.
Don't be deceived if a dealer, for the sake of larger profit, tells you some other kind is "just as good"—'tis false. No imitation is as good as the genuine HIRES'.

DO YOU WANT TO ADOPT A BABY?
Maybe you think this is a new business, sending out babies on application; it has been done before, however, but never have those furnished been so near the original samples as this one. Everyone will exclaim, "Well! that's the sweetest baby I ever saw!" This little black-and-white engraving can give you but a faint idea of the exquisite original, which we propose to send to you, transportation paid. The little darling rests against a pillow, and is in the act of drawing off its pink sock, the mate of which has been pulled off and flung aside with a triumphant coo. The flesh tints are perfect, and the eyes follow you, no matter where you stand. The exquisite reproductions of this greatest painting of Ida Waugh (the most celebrated of modern painters of baby life) are to be given to those who subscribe to Demorest's Family Magazine for 1893. The reproductions cannot be told from the original, which cost $400, and are the same size (17x22 inches). The baby is life size, and absolutely lifelike. We have also in preparation, to present to our subscribers during 1893, other great pictures by such artists as Percy Moran, Maud Humphrey, Louis Deschamps, and others of world-wide renown. Take only two examples of what we did during the past year, "A Yard of Pansies," and "A White House Orchid" by the wife of President Harrison, and you will see what our promises mean.

"I'M A DAISY."
Those who subscribe for Demorest's Family Magazine for 1893 will possess a gallery of exquisite works of art of great value, besides a Magazine that cannot be equaled by any in the world for its beautiful illustrations and subject matter, that will keep everyone posted on all the topics of the day, and all the fads and different items of interest about the household, besides furnishing interesting reading matter, both grave and gay, for the whole family; and while Demorest's is not a fashion Magazine, its fashion pages are perfect, and we give you, free of cost, all the patterns you wish to use during the year, and in any size you choose. Send in your subscription at once, only $2, and you will really get over $25 in value. Address the publisher, W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th St., New York. If you are unacquainted with the [illegible], send 10 cents for a specimen copy

Would you rather buy lamp-chimneys, one a week the year round, or one that lasts till some accident breaks it?
Common glass may break or not the minute you light your lamp; if not, the first draft may break it; if not, it may break from a mere whim.
Tough glass chimneys, Macbeth's "Pearl-top" or "Pearl-glass," almost never break from heat, not one in a hundred.
Where can you get it? and what does it cost?
Your dealer knows where and how much. It costs more than common glass; and may be, he thinks tough glass isn't good for his business.

AN ENEMY BAFFLED.

There is an enemy with whom thousands are familiar all their lives, because they are born with a tendency to billiousness. With this enemy they are constantly battling with ineffectual weapons. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will baffle it. Mere purgatives will not reform a disordered condition of the liver indicated, not by constipation alone, but also by sick headaches, yellowness of the skin and eye balls, nausea, furred tongue and uneasiness, more particularly upon pressure on the right side, upon and below the short ribs. Avoid drastic purgatives which gripe and weaken the intestines, and substitute this world-famous anti-billious cordial, which likewise removes malarial, stomachic and kidney complaints, rheumatism and nervousness. As a laxative of the bowels, painless but effectual, it improves appetite, sleep and the ability to digest, and possesses the additional advantage of a standard tonic.

A PROMINENT MAN.

One of Albany's Ablest and Best Known Citizens.

SOME INTERESTING INSIDE HISTORY IN THE LIFE OF A BUSINESS MAN.

He Speaks Strongly and Straight to the Point.

The successes of prominent business men are always of great interest to the people.

So, also, when a well-known and honored man is in trouble through illness not only his friends, but all who know him by reputation, are deeply interested in his welfare.

Mr. Seth E. Parsons is one of the leading business men of Albany, N. Y., and is widely known and highly esteemed as a citizen of sterling integrity, with the energy and force of character characteristic of our American business men.

Seen at his home, 22 Park St., by our papers's representative, he expressed himself in terms of the greatest gratification that had escaped possibly a most serious nervous difficulty which might have prostrated him.

"I was very nervous," he said, "I could not hold my hands still, especially my left hand; there was an involuntary contraction of the muscles and movement of the fingers.

MR. SETH E. PARSONS.

"My food troubled me very soon after eating. My kidneys and bladder were affected so it was difficult to urinate freely.

"I used the celebrated medicine, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and without being tedious reciting my experience, I can say that these difficulties have left me, and my nerves are quiet, aud my food does not distress me.

"I feel without hesitation in saying that I think Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy has produced these favorable results."

We have heard of many remarkable cures being effected by this remedy, but when we learn directly and from his own words of its curing a man of Mr. Parson's prominence and standing, we believe that such a cure should be to all a guarantee of the great curative powers of the remedy and should influence all thinking persons who are suffering from disease to use this truly remarkable medicine. It can be purchased for $1 at any druggist's and we know it is purely vegetable and harmless.

What gives us most confidence in the remedy is the fact that it is the discovery and prescription of Dr. Greene of 35 West 14th Street, New York, the eminent specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases and that the doctor offers to all sufferers free consultation with him either by calling at his office or writing him.

A number of members of the Hartford (Ct.) Equal Rights Club have sent congratulations to Mrs Mary A, Lease on the proposal to elect her to the U. S. Senate; so the newspaper statement that Mrs. Lease has received words of cheer from many men, but from no woman, is evidently erroneous. The suffrage clubs of Connecticut seem to be flourishing. A new one has lately been organized at Litchfield by Judge and Mrs. Hickox; there is a large and active club at Seymour, with Miss Sarah Withrop Smith at its head; and the clubs of Hartford and Meriden are always active.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED by local applications, as they cannnot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfecc hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

PLUTOCRATS.

During the campaign there were a few isolated instances where the "plutocrats" were friends of President Harrison, and these instances were taken advantage of and ultilized to their full extent by the Democratic managers. Now that the whole thing is over and the smoke has cleared away, it may be interesting to look into this plutocrat business. The election is but eight weeks past, yet Cleveland has received more "high wine" attention than any Republican President ever had in four years. The plutocrat swell occasions at which Cleveland participated since election day have amounted to more than all the dissipation ever indulged in by Harrison, Garfield, Grant or Lincoln.

Every step Cleveland takes is not only with a plutocrat, but with a Wall street plutocrat. Every time he cracks a bottle of wine it is with one of these same specimens of Jeffersonian simplicity. From his rising in the morning to his going to bed at night he is under the guardianship or these simple plutocrats.

Possibly this fact has been observed by those intensely anti-plutocratic voters who elected him. It is plain enough for every one else to see. Every one else is talking about it.

In this connection it may be well to recall a little election day incident. In London and Paris many Americans are to be found. As generally estimated, not many of the meek and lowly, in a financial way, spend from $10,000 to $15,000 a year abroad. In other words, the plutocrats and their families go to Europe. At one hotel in London on election day over 400 American men stopped and voted. It was a case of voting for Harrison and Cleveland just to test the complexion of the crowd. Of the votes cast over 300 were for Grover. Over three-fourths of the American swells doing London were Democrats.

A similar election was held in Paris. About 300 Americans in all participated. Over two thirds were for Grover. London seems to have captured a few more Democrats than Paris, which is to be expected.

This may seem a small matter on a minute's reflection, but not so small if two minutes are given to it. It is in keeping with the fact that there were three times as many millionaires in the Chicago convention as in that at Minneapolis,—Kansas City Journal.

PRESIDENT HARRISON INVITED.

General Beaver is on his way to Washington to personally invite President Harrison to attend the formal opening of the engineering department of the State College on Februaay 22 next. Extensive preparations are being made to make this an important event.—Tyrone Times.

Last March, a boy passed me an advertisement of DANA'S SARSAPARILLA. I read it and decided to try a bottle. The first bottle greatly relieved me. I bought another THAT CURES bottle and by the time that was taken, I had

Catarrh, Heart Failure, Paralysis of the Throat

"I Thank God and Hood's Sarsaparilla for Perfect Health."

"Gentlemen: For the benefit of suffering humanity I wish to state a few facts: For several years I have suffered from catarrh and heart failure, getting so bad I could not work and

Could Scarcely Walk

I had a very bad spell of paralysis of the throat some time ago. My throat seemed closed and I could not swallow. The doctors said it was caused by heart failure, and gave medicine, which I took according to directions, but it did not seem to do me any good. My wife urged me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, telling me of Mr. Joseph C. Smith, who had been

At Death's Door

but was entirely cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla. After talking with Mr. Smith, I concluded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. When I had taken two bottles I felt very much better. I have continued taking it, and am now feeling excellent. I thank God, and

and my wife for my restoration to perfect health." HARVEY HEED, Laceyville, O.

THE DAVIS!

THE DAVIS!

What is The Davis? The best Sewing Machine on earth.

It is the only vertical feed sewing machine ever made.

It sews through thick and thin, without any change of feed; which is the only feed, which will move one thickness or a dozen thicknesses of the same goods and sew the same without making any change.

It has all the attachments. It is light running. It is very durable and we guarantee it to be a long lived machine.

It is a beautiful piece of furuiture and an ornament in any household.

Reader, if you want to make your wife happy, present her with a Davis Sewing Machine.

Young man, if you want to make a present to your sister or to some other young man's sister, a Davis Sewing Machine will make your attachment doubly strong and make you twice as happy.

We challenge any other sewing machines to meet the Davis in a contest, as to the real merits of each, and will be glad to make a public exhibition in practical and fancy sewing. If three or more machines will accept this challenge, we will furnish the room free of charge, including light and heat for that purpose.

We invite all persons interested in the best Sewing machines to call at our store and examine the Davis; when we will take great pleasure in exhibiting the machine and explaining its merits.

HARPER'S BAZAR.

ILLUSTRATED.

HARPER'S BAZAR is a journal for the home. It gives the fullest and latest information about Fashions, and its numerous illustrations, Paris designs, and pattern-sheet supplements are indispensable alike to the home dress maker and the professional modiste. No expense is spared to make its artistic attractiveness of the highest order. Its bright stories, amusing comedies, and thoughtful essays satisfy all tastes, and its last page is famous as a budget of wit and humor. In its weekly issues everything is included which is of interest to women. The serials for 1893 will be written by Walter Besant and Edna Lyall. Christine Terhune Perrick will furnish a practical series, entitled "At the Toilet." Grace King, Olive Thorne Miller, and Candace Wheeler will be frequent contributors. The work of women in the Columbian Exposition will be fully represented with many illustrations. W. T. Higginson, in 'Women and Men,' will please a cultivated audience.

So we labored in the work: and half of them held the spears, from the rising of the morning, till the stars appeared. Neh-5-21.

RESOLUTIONS BY CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR SOCIETY.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted at the recent great Cenvention of the Christian Endeavor Society at Minneapolis. No one who reads it can entertain any doubts as to the ground which this new, wonderful, and world-wide organization has taken on the subject of temperance. We wish we might believe that every one of the half million young men and women who belong to the Christian Endeavor Society would carry out the principle of this resolution in their daily lives. If they will, there will soon be an end, we are confident, to the liquor business. But here is the resolution:

"Since the liquor traffic is the implacable enemy of righteousness and purity, of Christ and the Church, "Resolved, That we condemn intemperance in every form; that we stand for total abstinence, for the suppression of the saloon, and for the annihilation of the power of the whiskey ring in the politics of this nation."

This is the way "Bonfort's Wine and Spirit Circular" in its latest issue addresses itself to the friends of temperance: "The question of prohibition has ceased to be a subject of importance in the platforms of the two great parties. The bugaboo is no longer dreaded by even the most timid politician. Your little race has been run, and it is time that the wake that you are holding over the objectionable corpse should come to an end." As we have before remarked, how easy it is to write obituary notices for the things that you would like to bave die. The "wake" we are holding over the question of Prohibition is the kind of "wake" that will keep on waking until even the sellers of strong drink will have to open their eyes.

The introductory address by Dr. Davis at the recent Medical Congress on Staten Island, was upon the nature and effects of alcoholic liquors. He read statistics showing that there had been consumed in the United States during 1890, 80,000,000 gallons of distilled spirits, 40,000,000 gallons of wine, and 800,000,000 gallons of malt liquors. The use of alcohol resulted in sickness, loss of time, increased crime and pauperism, he said, which made the indirect cost resulting from its use in this country more than $1,000,000,000 in one year. No form of alcoholic drink, he said, is capable of warming, strengthening, nourishing or sustaining life.

The recent amendments to the Prohibitory law of Maine, securing a stricter enforcement, are beginning to bear fruit. A proprietor of a hotel in Portland recently called a meeting of his creditors, attributing his failure to the enforcement of the law against the sale of liquor. That the new amendments are pinching the liquor men harder than before is evident also from the fresh crop of items circulating through the daily press denouncing the Maine law as a farce, a failure, etc.

The Christian Inquirer strikes a true note when it says "Nothing less than the breaking up of the saloon and the destruction of the liquor-traffic is the demand of the hour. The tariff question, is important, so is the 'honest money' question, and we must deal with them, but the liquor question is the vital question. To thrust that aside, to ignore it, is as unwise as it is impossible. It will be coming up all the time. Mr. Spurgeon once asked to have a partition moved in the old New Park street Church to make more room. The deacons said 'Young man, let us hear no more of that.' Surgeon replied 'When the partition is removed you will hear no more of it.' So the sooner the liquor-traffic is killed the sooner the politicians will cease to be annoyed by it. Until the saloon is dead the agitation will not cease."

OUR PLATFORM: TOTAL ABSTINENCE FOR THE INDIVIDUAL, PROHIBITION FOR THE STATE.

There is something suspicious about the zeal with which the liquor organs are urging the merits of Dr. Keeley's cure for drunkenness. One of these organs, just at hand, says: "Here is something practical. It shows its record of success. It is prohibiting inebriation by removing the disease and extirpating the craving that leads to the disease. If the National Prohibition Camp-Ground Association is really in earnest, here is its golden opportunity. Let them listen to Dr. Keeley and if they cannot dispute his facts, let them adopt his system of combating the evils of alcoholism." Dr. Keeley is not to blame, of course, for this sort of advocacy, but why should the liquor organs be so anxious that his "system of combating the evils of alcoholism" should be generally adopted? Do they hope that the Keeley cure will supersede the moral and legislative remedies for the evils of the liquor traffic, and thus save them from what they call "persecution" by the temperance "fanatics." Do they think that the people will be satisfied to let the liquor-dealers continue in the manufacture of drunkards now that a process has been discovered whereby, it is alleged, the most miserable victims of alcoholism can be restored to health and strength, prepared again perhaps to become regular and profitable customers of the drink shops. What a beautiful system it would be from a liquor-dealer's point of view. Inoculate the tramps and bums, the victims of delirium tremens who are almost beyond the reach of the saloons, revamp them, set them on their feet, and give the rum-shops another chance at them. Dr. Keeley's cure for alcoholism may be a good thing, but we need most of all, something to prevent drunkenness. Down with the drunkard manufactories! Down with the laws that protect and sanction the business of drunkard making! An ounce of prohibitory law is worth a ton of Keeley remedies.

There are some interesting and suggestive comments in a recent number of Bonfort's "Wine and Spirit Circular" on the amendments to the license law passed by the last Pennsylvania Legislature. By one of these amendments the retail license fee in cities of the first and second class is raised from $500 to $1000. The amendment also gives nine-tenths of cities received only three-fifths. On this the "Circular" comments: "That will have a tendency to make the courts more liberal in the granting of retail licenses, as the receipt of this large percentage of the fee by the cities will be directly felt by all taxpayers." The Philadelphia correspondent of the "Circular" says the action of the Legislature in increasing the license fee "came like a thunder clap," but he adds this consoling reflection: "It is thought by some of the dealers that a $1000 license will have the effect of preventing any legislation detrimental to the interest of the wine and spirit trade in the future. It is to be hoped that such will be the case, and if it should prove so, the extra $500 will be the best investment the liquor interest has ever made." We commend these utterances of the liquor organ to the careful attention of our High License friend.

Wealth is a blessing if God sends it: a temptation if man asks it.—Clarke

We should not curiously seek to know where hell is situated; but by what means it may be escaped.—St. Chrysostom.

It is vain to think we can take any delight in being with Christ hereafter, if we care not how little we are in his company here.—Adam

In working righteousness, perfection is not to be measured by the perfectness of the work, but by the uprightness of the will and the sincerity of endeavor.—Downhame.

Bring thine all, thy choicest treasure,
Heap it high and hide it deep!
Thou shalt win o'erflowing measure,

He that said in the Gospel: "I fast twice a week," was a Pharisee; he that can tell how often he hath thought on, or prayed to God to-day, hath not meditated nor prayed enough.—Donne.

There is a forsaking sin that is unsound. A man may let one sin go, to hold another faster; as a man that goes to sea would willingly save all his goods; but if the storm arises, that he cannot, then he throws some overboard to lighten the vessel, and saves the rest. But he that forsaketh sin, as sin, forsakes all sin.—Meade.

Most of us have a general idea of what is meant by believing, fearing, loving, obeying, but perhaps we no not apprehend what is meant by watching. He watches for Christ, who has a sensitive, eager, apprehensive mind, who is awake, alive, quick-sighted, zealous in honoring him, who would not be surprised nor agitated if Christ should come now.—Newman.

EDITORS TABLE.

Scribner's Magazine, for January, begins its thirteenth volume and seventh year, for which many important features are announced, some of them making their first appearance in this number. Serial fiction will be a feature of the year, with such writers as Frances Hodgson Burnett, H. C. Benner, Robert Grant, Harold Frederick, and Miss Elliott, the author of "Jerry." In this number the first part of Mrs. Burnett's serial is given, under the tital of "The One I Knew the Best of All," with a charming bit of autobiography, covering the reminiscences of the author's childhood and youth up to the publication of her first story. It is believed that this story will do for the child-life of a girl very much what was done by Dickens in "David Copperfield" for the life of a boy.

In Summer Shade, a novel by Mary E. Mann, is the new volume in Harper's Franklin Square Library, published December 30th.

Bishop Hurst's Short History of the Christian Church will be published next month by Harper & Brothers.

Maria Louise Pool, author of that very popular story Roweny in Boston, has another new novel, Katharine North, in course of publication by Harper & Brothers

Harper's Bazar for December 31st completing its twenty-fifth volume, will contain among many other attractive features a two-act comedy by Grace L. Furniss, entitled "Pallo's Luck"; also a finely illustrated paper on "Chinese Women as seen in Pekin," by Isaac T. Headland, Professor of Mental and Moral Philosophy in the University of Peking.

The young men and young women who aspire to obtain Academic or College educations, and whose parents cannot well afford them that expense, will be interested in the work of The Cosmopolitan Magazine, which has offered for the year 1893 one thousand scholarships at any of the leading colleges or schools of the United States, upon the condition of introducing the magazine into certain neighborhoods. Yale, Vassar, Harvard, Ann Arbor, Chicago, the Southern colleges, the great schools of art and medicine, all are alike open to the ambitious boy or girl who is not afraid of a little earnest work. The Cosmopolitan sends out from its New York office a handsomely painted pamphlet to any applicant, telling just what is necessary in order to secure one of these scholarships. The scholarship includes board, lodging, laundry and tuition—all free.

HAWTHORNE'S LITERARY METHODS.

Nathaniel Hawthorne's only surviving daughter, Mrs. Rose Hawthorne Lathrop, has written an article for The Ladies' Home Journal, in which she will describe "My Father's Literary Methods."

A LITERARY MAN'S WIFE.

Bayard Taylor's widow is going to tell in an article which she has written for The Ladies' Home Journal what it means to be "The Wife of a Literary Man."

FOR GIRLS WHO SING.

Christine Nilsson, the famous songstress who now lives in a palatial house in Paris, has prepared for publication a careful and explicit article of suggestions on the voice, which The Ladies' Home Journal will shortly print under the title "The Study of the Voice."

William Dean Howells will contribute another of his inimitable farces, entitled "The Unexpected Guests," to HARPER'S MAGAZINE for January. It will be accompanied by a number of characteristic illustrations by W. T. Smedley.

A TRIP TO FLORIDA FOR 20 CENTS.

Whether you are going for the first time, have been there a dozen times, or never expect to go at all. but have to content yourself with "stay-at-home" travel, you will thoroughly enjoy reading the charming paper "The Gay Season in Florida," published in DEMOREST'S FAMILY MAGAZINE for January, which, with its sprightly descriptions of the beauties and pleasures of the popular resorts, and the numerous handsome illustrations, brings all the notable places of "the land of flowers,' so vividly before the mind that one may have all the pleasure of the fascinating, but, alas! expensive, trip, without incurring the fatigue, expense, or trouble of the journey.

If you wish a longer trip, you have only to read "Bebe Bwana," in the same number, to learn of the unique adventures of an American woman, Mrs. French Sheldon, in the wilds of Africa. "Thirty Degrees Below Zero" will tell how much you may miss by not experiencing a Dakota Blizzard; by reading "A Debutante's Winter in New York" you will learn how the "400" of New York spend their holidays; "Looking Toward Japan" and "The Story of a Duck's Breast" are only two of the excellent stories; you may learn something about almost everything useful and amusing by studying the various departments which are a special feature of this Family magazine; and all this need cost you but 20 cents for this special number, which is only a fair sample of what is given twelve times a year, for $2. Published by W. JENNINGS DEMORFST, 15 East 14th St., New York.

THE COLUMBIA DAILY CALENDAR remains the only valuable daily pad calendar. The calendar for '93 is of the same general design as that of previous years, consisting of 366 leaves, one for every day in the year, and a calendar for the entire year. The day of the week, of the month, and of the year are given, and on each leaf is a short sermon on the "Gospel of Outdoors, Health, and Happiness," with valuable hints on practical road making. The leaves are so arranged that there will be no stub left, and each one can be referred to at any time during the year. The pad is upon a metallic stand of ivory black, arranged so as to rest upon the desk at a convenient angle. The pad matter, which in the aggregate is enough to make a book, is all fresh and new, and is of more pertinent value than that of any previous calendar. The calendar is issued by the Pope Mfg. Co., of Boston, New York, and Chicago.

Keep it in the house. Good advice from the Captain. Captain S. C. Walker. Company C. 1st Regiment, Indiana Veteran Legions, Lafayette, Ind., writes this: "I have used Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup in my family for the last two years, and advise all having children never to be without it.

Chicago's Population.

There is probably no city of importance in the world that can show such rapid and wonderful growth as Chicago since its destruction by fire. To-day its population is about 1,200,000. Mr. Peter Van Schaack, one of the leading merchants of that city said in conversation, that a large number of his personal friends, as well as scores of representative men throughout the Northwest with whom he had conversed upon the subject, had found St. Jacobs Oil a pain-curing and healing remedy of the most extraordinary efficacy. It is the Great Remedy for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Backache, Bruises, Burns, Swellings etc.

It Tastes Good

One reason why Scott's Emulsion of Pure Norwegian Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda has had such a large sale is because it is "Almost as palatable as milk;" but the best reason is that its curative properties are unequalled. It cures the cough, supplies the waste of tissues, produces flesh and builds up the entire system.

Scott's Emulsion cures Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Scrofula, and all Anaemic and Wasting Diseases. Prevents wasting in children. Almost as palatable as milk. Get only the genuine. Prepared by Scott & Bowne, Chemists, New York. Sold by all Druggists.

A SHORT SERMON FOR BOYS.

A Swedish boy fell out of a window and was badly hurt, but with quenched lips he kept back the cry of pain. The king, Gustavus Adolphus, who saw him fall, prophesied that the boy would make a man for an emergency. And so he did, for he became the famous General Bauer.

A boy used to crush the flowers to get their color, and painted the white side of his father's cottage in Tyrol with all sorts of pictures, which the mountaineers gazed on as wonderful. He was the great artist Titian.

An old painter watched a little fellow who amused himself by making drawings of his pot and brushes, easel and stool, and said: "That boy will beat me some day." So he did, for he was Michael Angelo.

A German boy was reading a blood-and-thunder novel. Right in the midst of it he said to himself: "Now, this will never do. I get too much excited over it. I can't study so well after it. So here goes!" and he flung the book into the river. He was Fichte, the great German philosopher.

Do you know what these little sermons mean? Why, simply this, that in boyhood and girlhood are shown the traits for good or evil which make the man or woman good or not.—[Exchange.

USE DANA'S SARSAPARILLA, ITS "THE KIND THAT CURES."

—About two weeks ago Oscar Lonbarger, of Pleasant Gap, went up the mountain to hunt foxes. While standing in the road leading from Pleasant Gap to Centre Hall he was confronted by a large bear. He was somewhat surprised to meet such large game and for a moment stood irresolute but soon gained his senses and shot twice at the animal, killing it. He then hurried to the Gap to tell the story, which at first was thought to be the figment of an excited brain. Soon after two hunter's from Nittany Hall came along and claimed the skin as they said they were in pursuit of the bear when it was shot. Mr. Lonbarger, however, refused to recognize their claim and they left for home, mad.

Clean, Unsensational and Just the Paper for the AMERICAN HOME.

THE PRESS has the best possible organization to secure news from the most important sources, and with nearly 400 correspondents in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware, the State and near at home news is covered with a routine carefulness and attention to detail not even attempted by any other paper

The Press has also the best of correspondents in all the great cities of the United States, as well as financial and railroad experts in Chicago and the West, who keep the paper more than abreast with events.

The columns of the Sunday Press are enriched by contributions from those whose names are written high in our lists of great authors, novelists, essayists, as well as from men of high rank in public life. The best authors know that their best audiences are the readers of the Daily, Sunday and Weekly Press.

In politics the Press knows no other master than the people and the past year has seen, as has been seen before, the marked fact that it is subservient to no political boss. It has no political ambitions to foster, but looks after the interests of its readers, and delivers itself upon the issues of the day in a manner both frank and fearless, letting the facts speak for themselves and evading the issues but meeting them all on the basis of fair play to all men at all times. Its pages know no distinctions and the rights of one class over another are neither recognized nor supported.

HARPER'S WEEKLY.
ILLUSTRATED.

HARPER'S WEEKLY is acknowledged as standing first among illustrated weekly periodicals in America. It occupies a place between that of the hurried daily paper and that of the less timely monthly magazine. It includes both literature and news, and presents with equal force and felicity the real events of current history and the imaginative themes of fiction. On account of this very complete series of illustrations of the World's Fair, it will be not only the best guide to the great Exposition, but also its best souvenir. Every public event of general interest will be fully illustrated in its pages. Its contributions being from the best writers and artists in this country, it will continue to excel in literature news and illustrations, all other publications of its class.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From Our Regular Correspondent.

Washington, Jan. 2, 1893.

Representative Springer, of Illinois, is usually what might be called a mild-mannered sort of a man, but his ire can be aroused; in fact it has been aroused and he is now as angry a fellow as anyone would care to see. He has been 'skunked' in the game of politics, and he believes that a "cold deck" was used against him. Springer is ambitious—those who do not admire him say far beyond his abilities. Be that as it may, everybody in Congress knows that Springer is ambitious. It will not be forgotten that he was a candidate before the democratic caucus of the present House for Speaker, and that at an opportune moment he threw the few votes he controlled to Crisp, and the result was Crisp's nomination and election. Another result that Crisp was so grateful that he made Springer chairman of what is always when in competent hands the most prominent as well as important committee of the House—Ways and Means—notwithstanding earnest protests against such action from democrats who had years ago sized up Springer's brain power.

As Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee Mr. Springer has not only made a failure, but he has made himself the laughing stock of a majority of his own party in Congress by his "pop-gun" tariff bills, which were reported from his committee and passed by the House at the last session. But that was not plain to him, for he recently announced himself as favoring the Clevelend tariff programme—whatever that may be—and was instrumental in securing pledges from democratic members of the next House to vote for the re-election of Speaker Crisp, which he fondly hoped would give him a "lead pipe cinch" on the chairmanship of the Ways and Means committee of the next House, a position which promises to give its holder much notoriety, if not actual fame, during the life of the Fifty-third Congress.

When Speaker Crisp returned from that much talked of conference with the President-elect, with the Cleveland trademark stamped all over him, things began to get so slippery under Mr. Springer's feet that he wondered why inventive genius had never put political ice-creepers on the market, and even while he was wildly waving his arms in an attempt to keep his balance both feet went out from under him, and he saw it written among the stars that his scalp had been demanded by Mr. Cleveland and promised by Mr. Crisp, and then he fully realized that the tariff bill to be prepared—perhaps "approved" is the proper word; it certainly will be if it turns out to be true, as now reported, that Mr. Cleveland will have that measure prepared under his own supervision—by the Ways and Means committee of the next House will not bear the name of Springer.

Misfortunes never come singly. While Springer was meditating on the suddenness of his fall and the vanity of ambition he was informed that the man he hates above all others—Hon. W. R. Morrison—had been endorsed by the entire Illinois delegation, himself excepted, for a seat in Mr. Cleveland's cabinet. Now you know why Springer is the maddest man in Congress. He still wears a buttonhole boquet, but the expansive smile which was erstwhile the most prominent feature of his face has vanished, perhaps forever, and he has the look of a man who is working his nerves up to the point of doing something desperate.

Senator Allison returned to Washington to-day. Needless to say that he was warmly welcomed by his Senatorial colleagues and his friends, both in and out of public life. He called on the President at once and they had an hour's talk about the deliberations of the International monetary conference, to which Senator Allison was a delegate. The Senator agrees with Secretary Foster in believing that the conference has accomplished some good although failing of any practical results. He declines to express an opinion as to whether any sort of agreement will be reached by the commission when it reconvenes next May.

New Year's day has usually been the most brilliant of the year in Washington, but this year is an exception. The first day of the year falling on Sunday to-day is observed as the holiday, but the gorgeous at the White House, with all of the diplomatic corps in the full court costume of their native countries, all of the army, navy and marine officers in full dress and uniform and the officials of the executive, judicial and legislative departments of the government, is sadly missed. Instead of being the scene of this bright pageant the White House is in quarantine, because of the case of scarlet fever with which the President's grand-daughter is confined to her bed. There are no official receptions being held, and the number of private receptions is very much smaller than usual, as many of our most prominent people omitted them as an evidence of their sympathy for the President and his family.

ARE women more intelligent than men? —The civil service records of the past three years show that out of the number of young men applicants examined for government offices only a little over one-half passed, while four-fifths of the women applicants passed. Perhaps the women's brains are not so muddled by tobacco and intoxicants, and thus they are enabled to give clearer answers in examination.—[Ex.

THE USE AND ABUES OF WHISKEY

This subject could be dwelt upon to a considerable length, and yet much would remain untold, but all agree that the use the proper use of pure rye whiskey is an absolute necessity, especially so nyw, when nature insists upon being stimulated. All regular physicians prescribe rye whiskey, and justly claim that Klein's Silver Age and Duquense whiskies are justly celebrated. They do this not only because they have tried them but because the leading hospitals use them—find them the best stimulants in the world. Silver Age sells for $1.50 and Duquense for $1.25 per full quart. For sale by all dealers and druggists. Ask for them or send to S. Schloss, Williamsport, Pa.

NO NEGRO DOMINATION ABOUT THIS.

The "regular" democracy of Alabama are finding Kolb a thorn in their sides. He is undoubtedly the rightful Governor of the State, and in his tirelessly energetic way is showing up the frauds of the "regulars" by facts and figures that no one can or does dispute. He has recently issued a statement showing that he was elected by 45,000 majority at the August election, fully 25,000 of that majority being made up of white voters.

The returns by counties are given, and the manner of counting him out in each instance. In Dallas county, for instance, where the honest return showed 3,000 majority for Kolb, the final result was made to be 6,100 majority for Jones. So this chain fraud and ballot-box stuffing ran throughout the entire State, until a rightful majority of 45,000 for Kolb was overturned.

The Kold-Jones contest in Alabama was no question of Negro domination. It was what Southrons are pleased to call a white man's affair, for Kolb's success meant no more to the Negro than Jones's. It was an uprising against the democratic "machine," but the machine put into operation the old Bourbon electioneering methods, and bribed, bulldozed, cheated defrauded and finally counted out its opponents. That is all there was to it.

What need for nominations or contests if such things are to continue and to be countenanced here at the North? If our Northern voters are to be educated to regard such a spectacle with any other feeling than that of indignation and disgust, how long will it be before the shotgun will be laid across our own ballot boxes and our voters invited to face it in opposition if they dare?

DIED OF HEART DISEASE.

One of those sudden deaths from heart failure, which have been occurring so numerously of late, is reported from Scotia. Joshua Gorsuch, a merchant at that place, retired Monday evening, December 19th, in apparently good health. Late in the night, or rather early Tuesday morning, his wife was awakened by the struggles of her husband to get his breath. After she became awake it was but a few minutes until her husband expired. He was in the 62nd year of his age. Besides leaving a devoted wife there are three children, all grown, who mourn his loss. For eight years he filled the important position of machinist blacksmith for Carnegie & Cos., at Scotia, but during the past two years conducted an extensive mercantile business at that place. He was a member of Tyrone Lodge, No. 494, Free and Accepted Masons, which organization had charge of the funeral services which occurred at Gray's church, on Tuesday afternoon, at 1.30 o'clock.—Tyrone Times.

THE total value of the mineral products of the United States in 1890, according to the Chief of Mining Statistics, was $652,099,216. In 1880 the production was $369,319,000. The chief gains were in the two important products of pig iron and coal. The output of the former increased from 3,375,912 tons in 1880, worth $89,315,569 to 9,202,703 in 1890, valued at $151,200,410. The value of the coal products, anthracite and bituminous, increased from $95,640,396 in 1880 to $171,866,484 in 1890. Among the other important metalic mineral products are: Gold, $32,865,000; silver, $70,464,645; copper, $30,848,797, and lead $14,266,703. The value of the non-metalic products is estimated at $344,765,011.

THE CONDUCTING OF PLEASURE TOURS.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company, through its personally conducted tourist system, has gained an enviable reputation in the conducting of its pleasure tours, inasmuch as they send out with each individual tour an experienced tourist agent and chaperon, whose sole duty is to cater to the wants and pleasure of all in their charge. All destinations of the tours are selected with the view of giving to the tourists the most delightful territory for recreation, pleasure and sight-seeing. The rates quoted for each tour are in accordance with that liberality for which this enterprising company is noted. There will be a series of five tours to Washington, D. C., during the winter and spring of 1893, dates for which have been fixed as follows January 19th, February 9th, March 23rd, April 13th, May 4th and 25th. In addition to the above-mentioned tours the company has arranged a series of five to the famous winter resort, Florida, leaving New York and Philadelphia January 31st, February 14th and 28th, March 14th and 28th, 1893. The first four tours allow a stay of two whole weeks i the Flowery state. The rate quoted from Philadelphia $48, covers transportation, Pullman berth and meals en route on special train in both directions for first four tours, while tickets for the fifth tour are good to return by regular trains until May 30th, 1893, but do not cover Pullman charges or meals northbound.

For those desiring a prolonged tour of pleasure and sight-seeing no better trip is afforded than one of the Pacific Coast tours arranged by this company, three of which will be run from New York and Philadelphia during the year 1893, departing on the following dates: February 8th, March 2nd and 29th. The rate will cover transportation in a palace vestibuled train in both directions, meals en route, carriage drives, and side trips to prominent points of interest in California. For information regarding any of the tours, or for detailed itineraries, application should be made to the Tourist Department, Pennsylvania Railroad Company, 233 South Fourth St., Philadelphia.

PENSIONS FOR REBELS ONLY.

Our democratic contemporaries denounce the democratic House for passing on Monday a bill to increase the allowance of the pensioners of the Mexican War by 50 per cent.

Go slow, neighbors. These Mexican war pensioners are in a large part ex-confederates. The democratic warfare on the pensioners is directed not against them, but only against the loyal Union veterans of the North.

It will be remembered that President Cleveland, while he vetoed a general pension bill for the Union veterans, signed a similar measure for the veterans of the Mexican war, simply because most of those veterans were ex-confederates.

Kept up for years—the offer that's made by the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. It's addressed to you, if you have Catarrh. It's a reward of $500, if they can't cure you, no matter how bad your case, or of how long standing—an offer that's made in good faith by responsible men.

Think what it means! Absolute confidence in their Remedy, or they couldn't afford to take the risk. A long record of perfect and permanent cures of the worst cases—or they couldn't have faith in it. It means no more catarrh—or $500. If you fail to be cured, you won't fail to be paid.

But perhaps you won't believe it. Then there's another reason for trying it. Show that you can't be cured, and you'll get $500. It's a plain business offer. The makers of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy will pay you that amount if they can't cure you. They know that they can—you think that they can't. If they're wrong, you get the cash. If you're wrong, you're rid of catarrh.

PERSONAL REMINISCENCES.

SOME UNPUBLISHED LETTERS OF CARLYLE TO EDWARD IRVING and others dealing with a part of Carlyle's life far different from that brought out in the recent literature of Carlyle reminiscences. RECOLLECTIONS OF LINCOLN AND SUMNER, by the late Marquis de Chambrun. Both articles are full of new matter. AN ARTIST IN JAPAN, by Robert Blum, who has just returned from a residence of nearly two years in that country. Abundantly illustrated by the author. HISTORIC MOMENTS, which have been a feature of the magazine during 1892, which will be continued by some particularly striking papers, among them several by the great war correspondents, William H. Russell, Archibald Forbes and others.

MEN'S OCCUPATIONS.

A series of articles on the life work of men in many callings—the chief ways (exclusive of professions) in which men earn their livelihood.

THE WORLD'S FAIR IN CHICAGO.

A series will be published later in the year giving the impressions made by the exhibition upon different observers of note, both American and foreign: and many of these observers will be also artists who will also illustrate their own articles.

MISCELLANEOUS ARTICLES.

Further contributions to the POOR IN GREAT CITIES. Mrs. Burnett's illustrated paper on the London plan for HOME AID TO INVALID CHILDREN, etc. Of special interest also will be Professor Heilprin's authoritative account of the PEARY RELIEF EXPEDITION (illustrated) a very interesting article by Octave Uzanne on the exhibition of WOMAN'S ART now going on in Paris, and articles upon artistic subjects, accounts of travels, etc., etc.

THE ILLUSTRATIONS of the year will represent the work not only of the well known illustrators, but many drawings will also appear by artists who are best known as painters.

THE NEW YORK TRIBUNE 1893.

Greatest of Republican Newspapers.

National in its aims and devoted to the welfare of the American People.

THE NEW YORK TRIBUNE concedes the election of Grover Cleveland, but promises to defend the Republican policy on Finance and Protection, with all the ability it can command.

It was the discontent of the farmers which caused the Democratic victories of two years ago. THE WEEKLY TRIBUNE, addressing itself directly to them for the past two years, has carried on a campaign of discussion for their benefit, almost unparalleled in American journalism; and the result coupled with Whitelaw Reid's previous great service to farmers, has been seen in the face that agricultural communities have stood faithful to the Republican party, in a campaign in which, in other localities the party went completely to pieces. This year, the Democratic leaders changed their tactics and excited discontent among workingmen. They pointed to the higher prices of of farm products, and assured the workingmen of Northern cities that the British tariff system, (that is to say, lessened protection to American Farming and Industry) would lower the prices of food and manufactured products, and the profits of "monopolists" in this country, while at the same time maintaining the wages of labor, those wages being now the highest ever known in the United States. By false pretence, deception, and a pandering to the lowest passions of uninformed men in large cities, they have carried the country and elected a Democratic President and Congress.

The Tribune confidently awaits the result. Not for one moment, however, will The Tribune yield one inch of ground in the battle for American policies.

Roswell G. Horr's great articles will be among the features of The Tribune, the coming year. Men of every political faith are invited to read them. They will state the Republican view with frankness, point out the probable consequences of a change in the tariff policy of the country, and evade no issue, and conceal no fact, bearing upon the subjects discussed. Their thorough treatment of fundamental principles will aid every reader to a better understanding of profound and important issues.

A page a week will be devoted during 1893, to war stories and news of interest to union veterans. Old soldiers who have some experience to tell, which has not yet been printed, are asked to send the story to The Tribune for publication.

Farming has now become such an enormous interest in the United States, that there is an inperative necessity for making more of a specialty of the business interests of the Farmers of the country at large. Plans have been formed which ought to make The Semi-Weekly and The Weekly Tribune absolutely indispensable to every tiller of the soil during 1893.

A large number of entertaining features of general interest will also appear. "How to Succeed in Life," "Village improvement," special articles by brilliant men and women of high reputation, Chess and Checkers, and a hundred other things which cannot be recited in a brief prospectus, will appear on the Tribune's pages for 1893. The paper will have less politics and more of the thousand and one things which refresh the mind, entertain the imagination, and guide the reader in the prosecution of his business and social life.

The Tribune asks for reports as to the operations of Village Improvement Societies, from those who are acquainted with their operations.

An illustrated catalogue of excellent premiums will be sent free on application.

The Semi-Weekly is particularly commended to the attention of general readers. It gives more of the keen, incisive editorials, book reviews, foreign letters and other valuable features of The Tribune, than there is room for in the Weekly. The large type and broad columns of the Tribune make it the easiest paper to read.

To all who subscribe during 1892 for one year, the paper will be sent free for the balance of this year. Sample copies free. Weekly $1.00. Semi-Weekly $2.00

Friends of Agriculture, Industry and the Republican party, are invited to make up clubs for this paper in their localities. There are four years' of trial, of new experiment, of discussion of great national topics, and of observation of the effects of Democratic supremacy before the country. The Tribune will lead in the presentation of the Republican view. The friends of the splendid record of the Republican party, can aid in the final triumph of Republican principles by seeing that the people read the Republican side of the story. THE TRIBUNE, New York.

CASTORIA

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrups, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

DR. G. C. OSGOOD, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

DR. J. F. KINCHELOE, Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

WHAT WE SEE.

We see that the French republic is on the rocks;—

That most of her statesmen are thieves, and have used their office to plunder the nation;—

That another Napoleon may be a ruler of France:—

That Prince Victor feels an emperor's crown growing on his head;—

That if the republic survives it will be because her enemies cannot unite;—

That New York city pays nearly five and a half million dollars annually for police protection;—

That notwithstanding this, it is said that considerable wickedness manages to flourish there;—

That 200 saloons have been licensed to keep open all night in New York;—

That more than this number kept open without a license;—

That the 10,000 women who registered in Boston meant business;—

That all but 500 of them voted;—

That there is an effort to be made to purchase and preserve the home of Walt Whitman;—

That Mr. Blaine is only 62;—

That the episcopalians laid the cornerstone of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York city on the 27th;—

That women are to be equal to men at Harvard if they can raise $250,000;—

That they did not need this money to equal them outside of Harvard;—

That the poet Whittier left $133,000;—

That this shows that some poets know how to turn a penny as well as a rhyme;—

That Grover Cleveland is not a college graduate;—

That he does not know Greek;—

That the pope is worried over the European situation;—

That he sees ruin and disaster in the present state of affairs;—

EVERYBODY LIKES HER.

There is a type of girl that everybody lskes. Nobody can tell you exactly why, but after you have met her you turn away to some other woman and say, "Don't you like Miss Valentine?" Now, the reason you like her is a subtle one; without knowing all about her you feel just the sort of girl she is.

She is the girl who appreciates the fact that she cannot always have the first choice of everything in the world.

She is the girl who is not aggressive and does not find joy in inciting aggressive people.

She is the girl who has tact enough not to say the very thing that will cause the skeleton in her friend's closet to rattle his bones.

She is the girl who, whether it is warm or cold, clear or stormy, finds no fault with the weather.

She is the girl who, when you invite her to any place, compliments you by looking her best.

She is the girl who makes this world a pleasant place because she is pleasant herself.

And, by and by, when you come to think of it, isn't she the girl who makes you feel she likes you, and therefore you like her?—[Boston Globe.

SPENCER AT BILLIARDS.

Apropos of Herbert Spencer, a correspondent of the Frankfurter Zeitung recently reported the following anecdote, which, though it may not be quite new, seems worthy of being repeated: Mr. Spencer daily spends some of his afternoon leisure in the London Athenaeum, the famous club for scholars and literati. Here he will regularly play his game of billiards.

One day a young man who had been introduced to him asked for the pleasure of having a game with him. The philosopher started the ball, but when his young acquaintance seized the cue he proved to be such an expert on the green cloth that he finished the game by one run, so that Mr. Spencer found no further occasion for using his rod. Darker and darker grew the clouds that gathered on the scholar's forehead while he was apparently following the game with the greatest interest. When finally the young man, after the last shot, smilingly turned to his opponent to receive the philosopher's compliments the latter, in the most serious manner, remarked:—

"Sir, moderate proficiency in such sport is a sign of good education; such mastership, however, as you exhibit is the proof of ill-spent youth."

Thus speaking Mr. Spencer took his hat and disappeared.—[Baltimore Sun.

THOUGHT SHE SAW SATAN.

In Labrador they have no Wagner cars and consequently no Wagner porter.—Neither do they have barber-shops. The game of policy is unknown. It is too cold for white vests. Estha, having grown to plump maidenhood, had never seen any colored people. Estha is the Esquimau girl brought all the way to Chicago to live in a sealskin tent at the World's Fair grounds. Yesterday she was sitting on a bearskin rug, enjoying the icy breeze that came in under the raised flap.

While she was thus engaged a colored gentleman with fur on his coat went into the special exhibit to see the people from the north pole. He asked an attendant if he could look into one of the houses. The attendant said "Sure." The colored gentleman ducked his head and crawled in, coming face to face with Estha of the round and buttery face.

There was a shriek of mortal terror and a colored man came scrambling out. They found Estha in a dead faint. After she had partially recovered she became hysterical, weeping and shivering and talking hot Esquimau to the excited little natives who gathered about her. In Labrador she had never seen an ebony face. She thought the innocent man with fur on his coat was Satan.—[Ex.

GEMS OF THOUGHT.

Frailty, thy name is woman!—[Shakespeare.

The woman that "calc'lates" is lost.—[O. W. Holmes.

A lady whose dress sets well behind feels a peace of mind which even the consolations of religion cannot always give.

This world is full of fools, and he who would not wish to see one, must not only shut himself up alone, but also break his looking-glass.—[Boileau.

Men dying make their wills—but wives
Escape a work so sad:
How can they make what all their lives
The gentle dames have had?
—[John G. Saxe.

Auld Nature swears, the lovely dears
Her noblest work she classes, O!
Her' prentice han's she tried on man,
And then she made the lasses, O!—Burns.

The gay will laugh
When thou art gone, the solemn brood of care
Plod on, and each one as before will chase
His favorite phantom; yet all these shall leve
Their mirth and their employments, and shall come
And make their bed with thee.—[Wm. C. Bryant.

The best part of one's life is the performance of his daily duties. All higher motives, ideas, conceptions, sentiments, in a man are of no account if they do not come forward to strengthen him for the better discharge of the duties which devolve upon him in the ordinary affairs of life.—[Henry Ward Beecher.

There are three important times in a man's life—when he is born, when he marries, and when he dies. And even then his own importance is overshadowed by the curiosity to know if he is a boy or girl, what the bride wore, and what he left in his will. Vain man; you don't cut much figure in this world!—[Bradford Era.

MRS. MARY HALL, attorney at law, conducts a class in "civil government," at Woodside Seminary, Hartford, Ct. Politics, the tariff, etc., are discussed. The Hartford Times commends the idea, and says the class is proving a great success. It continues: "One important branch, that of the different property and marriage laws of each State, will probably be taught, so that each young pupil will be conversant with the laws of her own State, at least concerning matters so important to her interests. The girls and women of the past have been almost unpardonably ignorant of them, resulting, in many cases, in disastrous consequences to themselves."

A GOOD EXCUSE.—The following was overheard by the ears of a reporter during the cooing hours of a country picnic:—"Darling, I am going to let go of your hand for a minute, but you won't be mad will you darling? I wouldn't let go till you did, only some sort of a bug is crawling up my trowsers' leg, and I can't keep my mind on you and bugs at the same time."—[Macon Telegraph.

LITTLE JOHNNY ON MARRIED FOLK.—Mamma and papa gets mad every once in a while and has a great time about nothin' You'd think they'd eat each other up. But when mamma goes off visitin' papa acts like a cry-baby, and when papa goes off on business mamma is a cry-baby til he gets back safe. Other boys say their papas and mammas is the same way. I guess it's malaria.—[New York Herald.

WHAT THE OLD HEN SAID.

Into the house he came running,
And begged me to cut off his curls,
Over his head richly clustered,
As bright and as fair as a girl's.
"Why would you lose them, my darling?"
"Because our old hen," pouted he,
"Screams, when we meet, 'Get-your-hair-cut!
Get-your-hair-cut!'—I know she means me!"
—[GEORGE COPPER.

WHEN you see a man with a gun on his shoulder and three dogs at his heels making across the country, you needn't feel bad for the rabbits. He'll miss a crow or two, find a few frozen apples, fall into a creek, and return home believing he has had a thundering big time.

IT IS NOT BEST.

to always believe everything that a person tells you, but when you hear that the best blood purifier is Sulphur Bitters, you can believe it, for they cured me of a severe case of blood poisoning.

A HAPPY NEW YEAR.

The Republican wishes all its patrons, correspondents and friends; yes, and its enemies,—and everybody, rich and poor, high and low, happy and unfortunate, sick and well, A HAPPY NEW YEAR.

We see that W. H. Kochler of Bellefonte has received a patent for a napkin supporter. We hope that Mr. Kochler may prosper with his new devise and that he may make his fortune by the sale of his patent.

MISS SADIE BOYD, studying at the Denver (Col.) University, travelled all the way to her home at Cheyenne in Wyoming, a distance of 100 miles, to cast her first ballot at the late presidential election.

MISS KATHLEEN MURPHY, of Dublin, has carried off the $1,500 prize for the best examination in modern literature at the Royal University of Ireland.

Miss Lucy E. Anthony, of Somerton, Pa., has been put in charge of the lecture bureau of the National W. C. T. U.

A STARTLING FACT.

SIXTEEN PER CENT. OF LIFE INSURANCE APPLICANTS REJECTED ON ACCOUNT OF DISEASED KIDNEYS.

The Trouble Comes From Lack of Care.

Dr. Lambert the general medical director of the Equitable Life Insurance Company, N. Y., said:

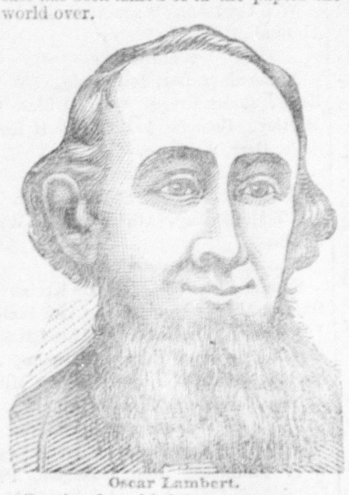
"We reject sixteen per cent. of the applications made to us for insurance, and I have saved the entire expense of this medical department, by the rejection alone of applicants who had diseased kidneys, and who died within two years after I rejected them."

This appalling statement coming as it does, from such high medical authority, should have the attention of our citizens. There is no reason to day, why people should allow kidney disease to get such a hold on them.

Nature sends her warning in the slight pain in the back, poor circulation of the blood, sediment in the urine. When any of these symptoms appear, Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy should be taken in small doses at once, and thus drive the poison out of the blood and restore the kidneys to healthy action.

To our knowledge this is the only medicine that surely and effectually cures this almost universal complaint.

We note the happy recovery of Mr. Oscar Lambert, of Jerico, Mo., whose case has been talked of in the papers the world over.



Oscar Lambert.

Quoting from his letter.

"I neglected the first symptoms until I found myself in bed with a complicated disease of the kidneys. No mortal ever suffered more and lived. My physician failed to help me. I then used Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, made at Rondout, N. Y. It relieved my kidneys almost immediately, and in a few weeks I was clear of all pain, and entirely cured. I owe my present lease of life to Favorite Remedy."

It is used and recommended for what it accomplishes. Writes Mrs. A. J. F. Manchester, from Providence, R. I.

"I began using Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy for kidney disease, when Doctors failed to relieve me. It drove a bad humor out of my blood, cured my kidney trouble, and I am truthful when I say it saved my life."

Wm. Huston the popular West Shore R. R. engineer, came out in an open letter stating how he had suffered with kidney disease. Physicians treatment, and the use of various preparations failed to benefit him. Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, was procured and it made him well.

Favorite Remedy has had more free advertising in the columns of the daily papers, than anything we know of, from the fact that it does as is promised, "cures disease."

Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy possesses marvelous strength and tonic qualities, that render it especially valuable to the aged or infirm. For a general all around tonic, and to cure any disease arising from an impure condition of the blood, it has no equal. [illegible] telling more of it than all other [illegible]

Local Department.

—Charles T. Ellis, the beautiful singer, in the Bellefonte opera house next Tuesday evening, January 10.

—The Phenix Planing Mill Co., presented every one of their employees with a turkey for their Christmas dinner.

—The post office at State College, this county, has been raised from a fourth class to a presidential office to date from Jan. 1.

—To avoid the rush for the Chas. T. Ellis entertainment next Tuesday evening, it will be wise to secure your seats early. The chart is now out.

—Dr. E. W. Dorworth lost a valuable horse last Friday morning. It was sick for a day or two. The Dr. did all he could to save it but without avail.

—Senator P. Gray Meek's daughters received from some friend a Christmas present of a Chester White Pig, only two weeks old. The girls are much pleased with their odd gift.

—Miss May Smith Robbins captured the hearts of a large Bellefonte audience by her skillful rendition of the amusing comedy, "Little Trixie," on Friday evening, December 30th.

—The cold weather has made excellent skating for all lovers of that sport, which is being improved, and large crowds gather out at Roogsburg, Mann's Axe works and on the canal at Milesburg.

—Adam Grassmire died at Milesburg last Friday, Dec. 30, at noon. He was an old soldier 74 years old. He was buried on Sunday afternoon at one o'clock. Geo. L. Potter Post, G. A. R., conducted the funeral.

—The Methodist Sunday school of Bellefonte had their annual Christmas tree in the lecture room of the church on Christmas eve. All the members of the school got a nice package of candy which pleased the young people very much.

—If you want to see a good play and hear some sweet singing be sure to attend the performance in the opera house next Tuesday evening, when Charles T. Ellis will make his second appearance in Bellefonte in his new play, "Count Casper."

—A. S. and C. M. Garman took charge of the Garman House on the second inst. They are both men of experience and ability and sure to succeed. Their father, Daniel Garman, Esq., has conducted this house for 31 years and made a fortune at the business.

—Rev. W. A. Houck, of the Methodist church of Bellefonte, is conducting a revival which will be continued as long as the interest is kept up, which should be all winter. For if there is any place that needs a revival in every sense of the word it is Bellefonte.

—The Reformed Sunday school, of Bellefonte, celebrated their annual Christmas reunion in the church on Christmas day (Sunday) at 10-30 o'clock a. m. The house was beautifully decorated and there was a present for every one. A beautiful service was used for the happy occasion.

—Mr. Agnew Moore died at his home in Missoula, Montana, on Wednesday, December 28, after a long illness. He leaves a large family to mourn his loss. He was at one time a resident of this county. He was father of Tom Moore, of the firm of F. P. Blair & Co., and of Howard Moore, of Howard.

—The employees of the Telephone exchange, Misses Maggie Haupt, Maggie Gibson, Sadie Malin, Lillian Barrett and Harry Lose, the night boy, all received from patrons of the exchange a very nice Christmas present in money. Three of the young ladies received $13 apiece and one $12 and Harry Lose $10.

—Sometime about Wednesday, Dec. 21, Miss Ruth Yarnell, a lady about fifty years old, went to make her home with Mrs. J. L. Lingle, on Spring street, Bellefonte, she had a bad cold, which growing worse, a physician was sent for but it rapidly developed into pneumonia and she died suddenly Wednesday morning, Dec. 28, at about eleven o'clock. She was an aunt of Miss Sue Jack, of Boalsburg, and a cousin of Miss Ruth Yarnell, who lived with Mr. and Mrs. John G. Love, on Linn St. The funeral was Friday morning, at 10-30 o'clock, from the house where she died.

—Hon John Cessna, of Bedford, one of the leading republicans of the state, got off the train at Bellefonte last Friday evening. He thinks the republicans are sure to sweep the country when the next congressional elections come; that by that time the people will be tired of free trade or "tariff reform." Mr. Cessna has long been in public life and his opinions on political matters have weight with men who know him for a sharp observer of events. He made a short stay as he was on his way east. He put up at the Brockerhoff House.

THE CENTRE COUNTY TEACHERS INSTITUTE.

The Teachers County Institute met at the court house in Bellefonte last Monday morning. An organization was made when it adjourned to afternoon. There were a large number of teachers present and every indication of an interesting occasion. Able and distinguished instructors had been engaged, We have not the space to give the proceedings of this body in detail as we would like to do; we have hardly room this week to speak even of a part of the work laid down by the different teachers. Perhaps one of the most attractive features of the institute was the speech of D. H. Hastings, Esq., which a crowded house gathered to hear, this occured on Tuesday morning. Gen. Jas. A Beaver addressed the teachers in the afternoon on "university extension." He was greeted with applause and his remarks were listened to with great interest. After the reading and adoption of the following resolutions the Institute adjourned:

COMMITTEE ON RESOLUTIONS.

At this the close of the forty-sixth session of the Centre County Teachers Institute, ever mindful of the priviliges and blessings bestowed upon us during the past by a kind and Havenly Father, and recognizing in Him the source whence all good cometh we, the teachers in institute assemble make these several resolutions:

1. That the thanks of the teachers of Centre county are due Prof. Etters, former county superintendent, for the able manner in which he conducted the affairs of his office. That by his resignation the teachers have lost an able counsellor and the pupils of our county one of their most sympathetic friends.

2. That the thanks of the teachers of Centre county are due D. J. Waller, state superintendent of public instruction, for the appointment of Prof. C. L. Gramley, as county superintendent, whose wise, vigorous and comprehensive administration, although he has filled the position but a short time, have given evidence of the wisdon of his appointment, he having won the confidence and respect of all interested in education.

3. That we heartly solicit the co-operation of the directors at our Teachers' Institutes.

4. That we tender our SINCERE thanks to the corps of able instructors and lecturers who have been with us the past week, and have worked so earnestly in our behalf.

5. That a vote of thanks be tendered to the county commissioners for the free use of the court house.

6. That owing to the increase of the State appropriation we again urge the directors to increase the salaries of the teachers instead of lowering the millage, and thus furnish an incentive to better teachers.

7. That we thank the citizens and clergy of Bellefonte for their interest in our work.

8. That in consideration of the fact that in the majority of cases, the foundation of catarrh, consumption and kindred diseases is laid in the improperly ventilated school room we most emphatically petition the boards of directors to take means to ventilate the school buildings on scientific principles.

9. Believing that the health of the pupils of our county is largely dependent upon the cleanliness of the school room, we would ask the hearty co-operation of our directors in arranging a plan by which all school rooms shall be scrubbed and thoroughly cleaned once every school month.

10. That we return our heartfelt thanks to M. C. Gephart, of Millheim, for the use of his piano.

11. That we hereby tender our thanks to Gen. James A. Beaver, Gen. D. H. Hastings, D. F. Fortney, Esq., Rev. W. E. Fisher Rev. W. A. Houck and Rev. M. O. Noll for their able and instructive addresses.

NECROLOGICAL RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God to remove from our midst our late friends and fellow-workers, Prof. D. M. Lieb, Reuben Pletcher, E. B. Hosterman and Miss Mollie E. Kelley, and

Whereas, It is but just that fitting recognition of their many virtues should be made therefore be it,

RESOLVED, By this Institute, that while we bow with humble submission to the will of the Most High, we do not the less mourn for our friends who have been taken from us and

RESOLVED, That in the death of these our fellow-teachers we lament the loss of those who where in every way worthy of our respect and esteem, and

RESOLVED, That in the death of Mr. Lieb who was so well known to all of us, we do especially mourn the loss of one whose constant thought was the comfort of others, and one whose helping hand was ever extended to those who needed support, and one whose whole life was indeed exemplary. Be it further.

RESOLVED. That, in the death of Mr. Galbraith we have lost a valuable friend and worker at our institute.

MURDER OF A FORMER BELLEFONTER.

On Monday morning, Dec. 26, a telegram was received by Joseph Fox, of Bellefonte, that his brother James, who lived at Cleveland, Ohio, was seriously injured and could not recover. He took the earliest train he could after receiving the news for the west. He found his brother in a dying condition, from wounds received from a hatchet and lived but a short time after his arrival. He then had his body properly prepared for transportation and started on his sad journey homeward arriving in Bellefonte on Thursday, Dec. 29. The funeral was Saturday morning, interment in the Catholic cemetery. James Fox was the youngest member of the family, about 32 years of age. He was an axe polisher by trade. In early life he worked at Mann's axe works; he went to Cleveland several years ago where he was working at his trade. He boarded at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Blakesley. On Christmas evening a man called and inquired for Mr. Fox. He was admitted by Mr. Blakesly and passed up to Mr. Fox's room. Soon afterwards a noise was heard and Mr. Blakesly went to learn the cause. Soon afterwards his wife, hearing a scuffle in the room, also went to see what caused the disturbance. Going up the stairs she met a man coming down, he appeared to be much excited. She asked him what the trouble was and he answered, "go and see for yourself." She hurried to Mr. Fox's room and found her husband and Mr. Fox lying on the floor in pools of their own blood, in an unconscious condition. The shock so effected her that for a time her life was thought to be in danger. Later—from information gained from the lady the police arrested a man by the name of Patrick Moran, who worked in the same shop with Mr. Fox and sometimes borrowed money from him. Later in the week at a hearing Mrs. Blakes ly positively identified Moran as the man she met on the stairs. Both men died of their wounds. Mrs. Fox, the mother of the murdered man, lives in Kansas.

DIED.—At Lemont, on Friday, December 23, Daniel Shuey, aged 81 years, 8 months and 12 days.

He was one of the oldest and one of the best citizens of our county and his loss will be deeply felt by a large circle of friends and relatives. He was a member of the Lutheran church, which organization he joined in early life. He came to this county from Schuykill county with his parents when only eight years of age. His parents settled on a farm near Lemont. When he was married he settled on a farm only one mile from where his parents lived where he has resided up to the time of his death. He leaves a wife and two daughters, Mrs. Israel Kauffman, of Bellefonte, and Mrs. John Swartz, of Kansas. The funeral took place on Monday morning, Dec. 26, at 10 o'clock. He was buried at Shilo cemetery.

DEATH OF HARRY STROUSE.

We are sorry to learn of the death of Harry Strouse, of Buffalo Run, a son of Joseph Strouse, which occurred Wednesday morning, January 4. He was 18 years old and one of the best young men in that neighborhood. His death will be sadly mourned by a large circle of relatives and friends. About one week ago he injured himself jumping over a manger in the stable, which hurt resulted in his death as above stated. We receive this sad news just as we go to press and have no further particulars.

DIED— at Lewisburg, Monday, Dec. 19, 1892, James M. Duncan, aged 82 years. The funeral took place on Thursday morning, Dec. 22, at 10-30 A. M. The deceased was one of the leading citizens of Lewisburg. He was born at Aaronsburg, this county, in 1810; was a graduate of Princeton clolege. He practiced law at Pittsburg and in 1840 had a valuable law library destroyed in the great fire at that place. He went to California during the great gold excitment of 1850 and when he returned he settled at Millheim, this county. He removed to Lewisburg in 1863

DIED—at McAlavoys' Fort, Dec. 29, 1892, Mrs. Mary E. Gates, wife of G. W. Gates. Burial at Pine Grove Mills beside her parents.

THE LOGAN BALL.

The Logan steam Fire company held a grand ball last Friday evening in Bush's Hall, over Eureka Grocery store. The proceeds were to be appropriated to the payment of the amount still due on the steamer many persons bought tickets who did not attend or intend to do so, just to help the object, but there were many young people there and a very enjoyable time was had. The ball opened a short time after nine o'clock. By ten o'clock the hall was crowded and still they kept coming. Tipples orchestra furnished the music. The committee of arrangements were Mich Cunningham, Oscar Yeager, Frank Williams, Ed schrom and Thomas Shawghency, Mr. James Shorter called off for the dancers. The best order was mantained.

PERSONAL PENCILINGS.

Robert A. Cassidy, of Canton, Ohio, is visiting his numerous friends in this county.

A. B. Weaver spent last Sunday in Bellefonte. He was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Harris, on west Linn St.

Benjamin Crosby a soldier of the war of the rebellion died in the Poor House at Lock Haven on Tuesday Dec. 27. He was poor and friendless a sad end to a soldiers life.

John Bayard, of Bellefonte, we hear has a situation to travel for a wholesale house in Chicago. We hope he may prosper and soon get to be the best salesman the house has; he has it in him.

Harry Teats, formerly a clerk for Sechler & Co and later a merchant on his own account in Bellefonte but now of Curwensville Pa., visited his friends in this county during the holiday season.

H. W. Bickle, of Howard, has entered the office of Hastings & Reeder as a student at law. He is one of the brightest young men we have and will no doubt, in the near future, take a leading part at the Bellefonte bar. He is fortunate in being under instruction of the celebrated firm of Hastings & Reeder.

P. T. Benz, of Boston, Mass., who is putting up the new organ in the Presbyterian church in this place, put up fifteen large organs last year. There are several men like him traveling for his firm. He has been on the road for them for the last eighteen years. It is needless to say he knows how to put an organ together.

John T. Johnston, Esq., of Bellefonte, who has a position at Harrisburg in the department of the Secretary of Internal Affairs, came home quite sick several weeks ago. For some time his friends were quite anxious about him but a short time ago he so far recovered as to feel that he must go back to his work which he did. He was hardly strong enough to undertake the task but feeling that he must do so, if possible, went against the wish of his family and friends. We hope he may find himself strong enough that no bad results may follow.

CHAS. T. ELLIS IN "COUNT CASPER"

Everybody in Bellefonte well remembers Charles T. Ellis, the sweet singer who appeared in Bellefonte two seasons ago in "Casper, the Yodler." Mr. Ellis is this season playing in a new piece entitled, "Count Casper," which far exceeds his old play in thrilling and dramatic situations, pathos, sentiment, humor sweet music, and everything that goes to the make-up of a first-class attraction. Mr. Ellis has this season gathered around him a company, each individual of which is an artist. With such an actor as Ellis, in such a play as "Count Casper," and with such an excellent company as he this year has, the opera house should be crowded on Tuesday night next.

—Our popular Overseer of the Poor, Robert Miller, and his estimable wife, who live on Jail Hill, Bellefonte, were preparing a Christmas tree and around it on the floor to represent snow, had sprinkled it with gold and silver dust to add to its attractiveness. The tree was lighted with candles. On Wednesday evening Mr. Miller went to light up the tree when one of the lighted candles fell into the cotton on the floor which quickly flamed up, the fire running up the tree. There was considerable excitement for a while but the fire was extinguished promptly. Considerable damage was done to the parlor, however by fire, smoke and water.

LETTER LIST

Following are the letters uncalled for in the post-office, Bellefonte, Pa., Jan, 3, 1893

When called for please say advertised.

J. A. FIEDLER, P. M.

—The young man, Lawrence Garris, son of Policeman Garris, of Bellefonte, who was injured some weeks ago by falling through a bridge, an account of which appeared in this paper, died of his injuries at his home last Saturday evening, at half past nine. He was about twenty years of age. The funeral took place Monday afternoon, Rev. William Laurie, of the Presbyterian church, officiating a large number of friends and relatives were in attendance.

BURNING OF STABLES OF M'CALMONT & CO.

On Wednesday evening, Dec. 21, at 10 o'clock, just after the last issue of the REPUBLICAN had been printed and was all ready to be taken to the Post office, an alarm of fire was sounded. The first alarm was from a locomotive whistle in the direction of McCalmont's Lime kilns; this was finally followed by the alarm whistle at the Electric Light works, but by this time the red glare of the fire could be seen from all over the town and far out into the country. The fire department was as promptly on hand as possible, the fire being some distance from the town proper. On reaching the ground our reporter found the stables of McCalmont & Co in full blaze and learned that nothing had been saved from the burning building. The structure was about seventy five feet long and had in it five large horses, six mules and two dogs. The mow was about half full of hay and had also about sixty bundles of straw; there was also about twenty sets of cart, carriage and other harnesses, not an animal escaped or was a thing in the barn saved. The fire was first discovered by a young man by the name of Hichoff, who immediately notified Sam Geiswhite, one of the drivers, and Richard Gunsallus, the stable boss, but before they reached the place the fire had made such progress that they could not enter the building. The flames soon spread to the blacksmith shop which was burned to the ground. The large elevator near by also caught, the roof was much damaged by fire and the contents was damaged by water and smoke. In this building was 1000 bushels of grain and several tons of fertilizer. The office building was also badly damaged by fire. A buggy and buck board in a shed near was burned, the fire being so hot they could not be got at. The loss reaches six thousand dollars, the insurance is not half that sum; by some oversight there was no insurance on the black-smith shop. The insurance on the live stock was not half their value, aside from the fact that they had a special value to their owners on account of the training. There is thought to be no doubt that this loss was the work of an incendiary. The fire was set inside the stable on the east end and the whole inside was on fire and it broke out through the roof before it was discovered. Although the firm lost all their horses and harness they did not stop work. Teams were hired the next day and the work went on, not as usual, however, for they soon found out the difference between the best they could hire and the trained animals they had lost. Mr. William Shortlidge was away from home at the time at the funeral of a relative.

The work of re-building was begun at once and the new stables is fast approaching completion. Mr. Robert McCalmont has purchased several animals to take the place of the lost ones. He says he did not know there were so many horses and mules in the country, he has had over two hundred offered him by anxious owners who want to sell.

—On Friday, Dec. 23, John Blair was married to Miss Mary Mann of East Plymouth, Ohio, and a few days ago the young couple came home to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Blair, of Fillmoure, on a visit. Last Thursday evening a reception was given the young people. The house was crowded with the relatives and friends of the happy pair. Mr. Blair was at one time a teacher in this county and is following that profession in the Buckeye state; it was there that he found his wife. Among the guests present were Mr and Mrs. Harry McEntire, of Williamsport, who have latey been married, also Mr. Arthur Norris, who was lately married to Miss Jennie Tressler. Such a greeting of young married people added to the Joy of the occasion. A sumptuous repast was served to all the guests.

MARRIED,—at the Methodist parsonage Bellefonte, on Thursday evening, Dec. 22, by Rev. W. A. Houck, Mr. Ed Heburon to Miss. Emma Bridge. Calvin Ray acted as groomsman, and Miss Blanche Heburn, a sister of the groom, as bridesmaide. After the ceremony they went to the home of the groom's parents a short distance from town to join their friends in a sumptuous wedding feast. May there lives live long and be happy.

MARRIED—At the Lutheran parsonage, on Tuesday evening, Dec., 27, W. S. Baney of Altoona, to Alice F. Grenoble, of Zion, this county. The young couple took the train for Lock Haven and eastern towns and cities where they will visit among friends, after which they will settle down to regular house duties at Altoona, Pa. Mr. Baney, is an employee of the Penna., Rail Road Co.

MARRIED—On Monday, Dec., 26, 1892, by Rev, M. O. Noll, at the Reformed parsonage, Thomas Hoover to Miss Laura Fetzer.

On Tuesday, Dec., 27, by Rev. M. O. Noll at the home of the brides' parents, Philip Deitz to Miss Alice Garman.
